DANGER!

Still Hovers Over the Turbulent Roads.

A Masked Mob is Now Marching to Destroy Long Bridge at Waco, Texas.

No Bloodshed To-day, But Every Probability That the Worst Is Yet to Come.

THE STRIKE.

How the Trouble Fares To-day in the Southwest.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., April 8.—Platform men at the Ohio and Mississippi yard, who were frightened away by a crowd of strikers, returned late yesterday evening and were employed again this morning. The road is prepared to handle all freight that will offer. A full force platform men have been engaged to begin handling freight at the Vandalia freight house. Deputy sheriffs are stationed in the yards to keep them clear of strikers.

POWDERLY AT WORK.

NEW YORK, April 8.—A Times special from Scranton, Pa., dated yesterday, says: For the first time since his return home from New York Mr. Powderly was able to leave his sick room to-day and give his personal attention to a mass of correspondence accumulated during his illness. He expressed himself as highly pleased with the proposition to appoint a congressional committee to investigate the Gould troubles. The country ought to know who is at fault in this business, and the blame should be placed precisely where it belongs, no matter on whom it is. He thought both sides had learned a valuable lesson from this conflict, namely, the folly of striking, and expressed it as his opinion that this would be the last railroad strike the country would have in many years.

A MASKED MOB.

WACO, Tex., April 8.—A large force has gone to Long bridge, nine miles south of this point, to protect it from a mob of fifty masked men coming from Leorana, Texas, to destroy the bridge.

PERFECT ORDER.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 8.—The striking Knights of Labor at East St. Louis have preserved perfect order. This morning several trains were sent out and as many more have arrived.

THE DANGER PAST.

The Ohio River at its Highest—But Little Damage

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

CINCINNATI, April 8.—There is much relief this morning in the prospect of an averted flood. The weather is fair and promises to remain so. The heavy snow of yesterday has practically disappeared, producing no perceptible effect on the streams. The river for six hours, ending at 9 a. m., has risen two inches. It then stood fifty-five feet and one inch. News from Cattlettsburg and Point Pleasant this morning, is that the river is falling at both points. The business men are confident the flood will not reach a point of extreme danger. The heaviest loss so far is that of the Gardners in the Mill Creek valley, where acres of vegetables are wholly destroyed.

Bloody Border Business.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

LAREDO, Texas, April 7.—At a demonstration here yesterday by the democrats, to celebrate the funeral, as they called it, of the party known as Huaraches, the latter attacked the parade with Winchesters and revolvers and a bloody riot ensued, in which five men were killed and three wounded, all the killed but one being Mexicans. A company of United States troops dispersed the mob and restored order.

Sun Wah Married.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Sun Wah, a Chinaman, was married yesterday to Miss Augusta Miller, a German girl, 22 years old. There are now five white women in Chicago, married to Chinamen, and all are Germans.

THE SALVATION ARMY,

Who Propose Carrying Our Citadels of Sin by Storm.

NEW YORK, April 6.—There are few newspaper readers who have not heard of the campaign against old "Nick," which is being carried on by the Salvation Army on the Atlantic seaboard.

Your correspondent met recently Gen. Thomas E. Moore, the commander of the American Salvation Army, who talked freely of the plans and methods of their forces, from which the following was gathered:

GEN. THOMAS E. MOORE.

No one would suppose to look into the pleasant face and mild eyes of Gen. Moore that he would be able to cope with such a crafty and treacherous enemy as his is said to be. Nevertheless, I question if the enemy has a more thorough knowledge of the weaknesses of the human family than this Gen. Moore. He was for a time an outfitter, or something of the kind for the British army, and there he saw how men would scramble for the privilege of enlisting as soon as the prospect of a war became known, and often the more hazardous the undertaking appeared the more eager were men to risk their lives. Here were men forsaking business and home, often encouraged by their wives, to fight England's senseless battles in the torrid heat of Africa or among the fevers of Asia. Moore saw this fondness of man for noise and show and excitement and conquest could be turned to account in Christian warfare.

It is said that it was Mrs. Booth, the wife of Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army in England, who first suggested the idea. She is a born Yankee, and having witnessed how men, sensible enough at other times, through the simple agency of a drum, fife and torch-light procession, during one of our political campaigns, will become so enthused as to accept any political doctrine their leaders give them. Here was the suggestion for a novel Christian campaign. Gen. Booth being a thorough soldier, as well as a clever business man, modeled the scheme after the plan of an army, adopting the same terms throughout as being ones with which the masses were already familiar. Gen. Moore, the outfitter, designed the costumes, and thus was this army organized.

Gen. Moore says the "hidea" originated with the apostles, was taken up by Ignatius Loyola in the sixteenth century, but revived in its fullness by William Booth in 1865 in London.

The army overrun England in fifteen years, when they undertook the conquest of this country. In 1881 the invaders landed on our coast and effected a footing in Baltimore. To-day they have constructed forts and barracks in all the principal cities east of the Mississippi, though their skirmish lines extend far beyond, one outpost having been effected in Idaho.

CAPT. EMMA WESTBROOK, "Stonewall Jackson." FIELD INSPECTOR M. K. LIGHT, "Kansas Jack."

Out of some 300 officers stationed in the 150 posts in this country are selected two of the typical ones. Capt. Westbrook was one of the first Salvation "lassies" to land on our shores. She is not possessed of a very liberal education. Grammar and she are perfect strangers, and though she plays fast and loose with her h's she is a worker who has not ceased shouting since the day she landed. Field Inspector and Treasurer Milton K. Light, strange to say, is a converted New York drummer.

Until 1884 the Salvation Army in this country was under the charge of Gen. Booth of England, Gen. Moore being simply a commissioner. When it became necessary to acquire land here, on which to construct forts, Gen. Moore found it would be impossible for Gen. Booth, being an alien, to hold the property in his name as he does all the possessions, amounting to millions, in England. So he broke off all connection with the English forces and has had his army incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, their property being held by five trustees. He also abandoned many of the "dime museum features" of the meetings. "Ash Barrel Jimmy," "The Converted Seal," and like curiosities are exhibited only by the American branch of the English army, which is also meeting with wonderful success here.

When a convert enlists in the Salvation Army he does so on the condition that he obey his superior absolutely. He is not to expect any compensation for his services. He must even supply his own uniform, and must keep himself in condition to fight, not only all summer but night after night as long as he lives, on the principle that the enemy never sleeps, therefore he cannot. After a long and severe trial the recruit or cadet may be promoted to the rank of lieutenant, and later to captain, when he is entitled to draw pay at the rate of $8 per week from the profits of the fort's post at which he may be placed. The army funds are derived from collections, which are an important feature of the warfare. The income from this source is about $75,000 a year.

When a raid is contemplated on a new town, a captain, lieutenant and cadet are ordered to advance on it. They secure a "barracks" in the town, after which they parade the streets with a banner and drums. If they are arrested and locked up so much the better, it attracts attention. Notoriety is half the battle won. When the barracks are reached the crowd follows, and then the battle begins in earnest, ending sometimes after midnight. Next day a report is sent to headquarters of the number of prisoners captured.

Ridiculous as all this may appear, don't our people do just such fool things in campaign times? S. H. HORGAN.

The people of Goshen and Elkhart propose to have their telephone business continue.

John H. Ragland, a Nortqern prison guard, has been sent to the hospital for the insane.

Dr. Isaac Boyd, of Valparaiso, died on Monday of heart disease, while returning from the polls.

Forty-six persons were received on Sunday into the Third Presbyterian church at New Albany.

A petition is being circulated in Indianapolis praying for the pardon of Isaac G. Seary, who is serving twenty-one years for murder.

The voters at Logansport were called upon yesterday to sign petitions for the erection of a $10,000 monument for the soldiers of that county.

John Muncie, Wabash flagman at the Main street crossing, Lafayette, for the past twenty-nine years, celebrated his birthday Monday, April 2, and, as has been the case on that day for the past four years, he found a horse shoe on the crossing.

At Lafayette, George Wilson, a drayman, struck Thomas Lonergan, a well known grocer, over the head with a dray pin, breaking his jaw and knocking all his teeth down his throat. Lonergan's injuries are probably fatal. Wilson owed Lonergan a grocery and rent bill and Lonergan dunned him, which was the crime.

"It is silly reported that the Hon. William Bunyan is a candidate for congress, and that his name will be presented to the republican congressional convention which will be held in Kendallville. Bill is also a staunch friend of Judge Lowry, and is in favor of his third term nomination," says the Kendallville News.

Mr. J. E. Martin, the miner temperance evangelist, has closed his meeting at Knightsville with 500 signers and opened up at Harmony Monday night. The first meeting resulted in 139 signers. Mr. Martin has thus far obtained 1,800 signers to the pledge, most of whom are miners. He has been invited to Brazil by the White Ribbon league and other temperance orders as soon as his meetings at Harmony close.

A merchant of Guthrie lost $4,000 in bonds. He believed he had been robbed and offered $200 reward for their recovery. Private Detectives Shlagel and Higgins, of Louisville, took the case and found that the man suspected was not the thief. By a bold piece of bluff made upon a negro porter about the place, they found that he had thrown out a box in cleaning up. He had picked up the box near the safe and threw it on a manure pile. The detectives hunted in the manure and found the bonds.

Developements in the Coucher assignment show that he failed for at least $150,000. Coucher ran elevators at Denver, Miami, Bennett's, Bunker Hill and Peru, and a general store at Miami. He enjoyed the unlimited confidence of farmers and business men and borrowed, it is said, many thousand dollars without security. It is alleged that he transferred a lot of property and borrowed money in amounts from $500 to $4,000, besides selling over 200,000 bushels of grain, before leaving, as is now known, for Canada.

THE Rev. Sam Jones, whatever his other characteristics, has a truly scriptural regard for money. If he is correctly reported, he says: "I have no use for money; I have all the money I want. My needs are supplied bountifully. My family is comfortable and happy, and I can't see what on earth I would do with money if I had it. A couple of hundred dollars in bank is an abundance, and is all I have. As long as a man has plenty for his wife and children and himself he ought to be contented. I don't think the Lord sent me out into the world to make money, but He did send me out into the world to do good. As far as my wife is concerned, my life is insured for $12,000, the interest on which, when I am gone, will be enough to keep her; and as for my children, I don't want to leave them $1. If they are of any account they won't need it; if they are no good, money will be a curse to them."

A HERO!

Gladstone Greeted by a Great Multitude,

Which Assembled to Witness His Departure for the British House of Commons,

Where He is to Unveil His Home Rule Policy to the Parliament for Judgment.

GLADSTONE.

His March to Victory or Defeat on Home Rule.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

LONDON, April 8.—At 3 o'clock the crowd outside the palace gates was enormous. It covered all the space down to Westminister bridge and extended pretty well up Parliament street towards Whitehall. A perfect jam filled Downing street, where Gladstone's official residence is situated. The crowd is patiently awaiting for the premier to make his appearance on his departure for the house of commons.

It was yet early in the morning when all seats on the floor of the house were taken to hear Gladstone's great speech.

THE ASSEMBLY.

The speaker of the house took the chair promptly at 4 o'clock. The chamber was packed to the very extreme limits of its capacity, and every doorway showed the hallways crammed with people, all craning to see and hear.

THE OVATION.

The liberal clubs alone had been counted in the throng outside. Before going to the house Mr. Gladstone took a drive through St. James park. When on his way to parliament the enthusiasm of the people all the way from the door of his house to the commons entrance was spontaneous.

The cheering continued until long after Gladstone entered the parliament buildings. at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Gladstone entered the house and his entrance was followed by loud and prolonged cheers, which were continued for several minutes. Among the liberals and Parnellites the wildest enthusiasm prevailed, and it is safe to say no such scene was ever witnessed before in the house of commons.

GLADSTONE SPEAKS.

As soon as the chairman had ceased, Gladstone rose and moved for permission to introduce a bill to amend previous legislation and to make provision for the future government of Ireland. He began his speech: "The time has arrived when both honor and duty requires parliament to come to a decisive resolution. It is our duty to establish harmonious relations between Great Britain and Ireland on a footing of

in which Englishmen, Scotchmen and Irishmen have a like interest."

This sentiment was greeted with prolonged cheers. As soon as quiet was restored Mr. Gladstone entered on a brief review of the general features of the past government for Ireland. He deprecated any further resort to rude remedies or intimidation.

BAD LAWS.

"Since the year 1832," he said, "only two years have passed without coercive legislation for Ireland, and in spite of all this the law continues to be disregarded because it is invested into the eyes of the Irish with a foreign aspect. He believed that the government had found as solution for the Irish problem in the establishment of a

for the conduct of business, both legislative and administrative. (Loud cheers by Parnellites.) The political equality of the three countries must be recognized, therefore there must be an equitable distribution of the imperial funds.

THE BILL.

The intention of the government bill he said, "Is that the parliament at Dublin shall be a dual body. It is to be composed of two orders, each of which shall have the power to veto the acts of the other. First order will include 103 members; second order 206. Twenty-eight of the present Irish peers will continue to sit in the house of lords, and will be granted the option to have life seats in the first Irish order. The office of viceroy for Ireland will not be discontinued. The bill intends that the viceroy shall remain and that the office shall hereafter be non-political. That is the incumbent of the office will not be expected to retire with the downfall of the British ministry. The bill empowers the queen to delegate to the viceroy such other prerogatives as she may choose. The Irish constabulary will remain under the same authority as the present, empowered to deal with laws affecting trade and navigation, coinage, weights, measures and the postal administration. The bill will preserve the fiscal unity of the empire, but the entire proceeds arising from customs and excise duties in Ireland will be held for the benefit of that country. These funds are to be used for the discharge of the Irish obligations, the balance to remain in the Irish exchequer. The bill vests in the Irish legislature the general power of imposing taxes."

THE FORTY-THIRD.

Opening Proceedings of the M. E. Conference at Warsaw.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

WARSAW, Ind., April 8.—The forty-third session of the North Indiana conference convened in the Methodist Episcopal church this morning at 8:30 with Bishop Harris in the chair. The conference was opened with the usual impressive devotional exercises, the bishop reading the scripture lesson and two of the oldes members, Brothers Roberts and Holdstech, leading in prayer. The roll was then called by the secretary of last year, Rev. C. G. Hudson, who was re-elected. L. J. Noftrxger was elected statistical secretary. A suitable number of assistant secretaries were appointed. The standing committees were appointed and the usual preliminary minutes' business was accomplished with neatness and dispatch. Bishop Walden, of Cincinnati, came in and was introduced to the conference and invited to a seat beside Bishop Harris. Dr. Hartzell, representing the Freedmen's Aid society, addressed the conference. The Freedman's Aid anniversary was held last evening, and was addressed by Dr. Gay, of Chicago, and Dr. Hartzell. This society is engaged in establishing and sustaining schools of higher grade throughout the south, mostly among colored people. It has established some thirty schools and colleges and has expended a million and a half dollars, and has assisted the education of thousands of preachers, teachers and physicians among the colored people.

Rev. Charles Martindale was readmitted on his certificate of location. On motion the general educational collection for this year and next were appropriated to Fort Wayne college. The educational anniversary will be held Saturday evening and will be addressed by Dr. Terry, of Garrett, Dr. Yocum and others. The annual missionary sermon was preached this afternoon by W. H. Daniel, of Logansport, and the anniversary will be held this evening.

Gerinomos, wife and daughter, are among the prisoners.

From Superintendent to Conductor.

The Defiance accommodation, run on the Wabash railroad between that place and Toledo, recently in charge of Conductor A. M. Prince, has been assigned to George Dimmick during the remainder of Conductor Carvers absence. Mr. Dimmick hails from Marshal, Texas, at which place he was division superintendent on the Texas and Pacific railway, his territory consisting of two divisions and comprised 497 miles of road. He left there by his own request, preferring to run a train in the north rather than be a superintendent in the south. This change will probably place Mr. Prince back on the accommodation run between Andrews and Tilton, a position he held prior to doing extra passenger work.

OVER THE BANK.

A Train is Wrecked and Many Lives Lost.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

GREENFIELD, Mass., April 8.—A terrible disaster occurred on the Fitchburg railroad last night, midway between Bardwell's ferry and West Deerfield station, the east bound passenger train due at Greenfield at 6:05 p. m. going over an embankment 200 feet high. Six bodies have already been taken out of the ruins and it is not known how many others were killed. The train was the eastern express and consisted of a baggage car, smoker, sleeping car, mail car and two ordinary passenger cars. The train was in charge of Conductor Foster, with Herbert Littlejohn as engineer. The point where the accident occurred is the most dangerous on the road. The train runs on the edge of an embankment 200 feet above the Deerfield river. The bank is steep and covered with huge boulders and masses of rock. When the train arrived at this point, the track commenced to settle under it for a distance covering its entire length, the coaches broke from the trucks and rolled over and over down the steep banks. The engine broke from the tender, tearing up the track twenty feet below, and rolled down to the edge of Deerfield river, on the edge of which the cars were thrown. As soon as they struck they caught fire from the stoves. The sleeping car was an entire wreck. It was occupied by several passengers, not one of whom at this hour is known to have escaped injury. One man, whose name is unknown, is imprisoned in the wreck of the sleeper, where he was burned alive. One little girl was picked up dead. As soon as the news reached Greenfield a special train was made up and sent to the scene of the disaster, having on board several physicians, section men and a few citizens. On arriving at the scene of the wreck a horrible sight was witnessed. Darkness had settled over the spot. Far down on the river bank could be seen the smouldering embers of the holocaust. It was impossible to tell who was hurt or who was killed. Stout-hearted trackmen were lowered cautiously down the treacherous height and the work of rescue began.

Some of the injured and dead were taken to Shelburne Falls, and some of the wounded to Greenfield.

Being interviewed by wire last night, at Shelburne Falls, Conductor Foster said: "I am unable to state how many were on the train. Only three passengers have thus far been found who escaped injury, and they set the number of passengers all the way from twenty-five to 100."

At midnight it was reported that four more dead bodies were removed from the wreck, and it was believed that others had been swept down the river. Of the four bodies found one was recognized as that of Brakeman Spicer. It is impossible to give a complete list of the killed and wounded at present.

THE LATEST.

Meritt Ely, superintendent of the National Express company, died this morning. Engineer Littlejohn cannot live till night. Two bodies were brought here this morning. One was identified as E. E. Hayden, the other as J. R. Gould, of Obington, Conn. C. P. Bell, of Nashville, says there were several persons in the water below him, but he saw none of them get ashore and he believes they were drowned. John Crowley, of North Adams, was on the train and is wildly insane.

A LEVEL-HEADED NEWSDEALER.

Newsdealers are as a class popularly supposed to know a good thing when they see it, and are ever on the lookout for that which will interest and please the public. In a humble way Edison was once a newsdealer, having sold papers on railroads. Among newsdealers who have a keen eye to business and to everything that can be of benefit is Mr. G. W. Dove, of Vincennes, Ind., whose place of business is at No. 114 Second street. Mr. Dove was recently afflicted with rheumatism, but quickly cured himself by using Athlophoros. This is what he says about it:

"Athlophoros is a good medicine and it did for me all that I could ask. At the time when I began using it I was sadly afflicted with rheumatism. I was in a helpless state and suffered untold pain, not being able to get out of bed or to be moved without enduring the greatest agony. I had read some time before of the wonderful cures of people effected by Athlophoros, and at the time tried to buy it at the drug stores, but could not find any. As I was determined to try it I sent to the company for some."

"Did it act quickly upon you?"

"I felt the effects almost immediately. After I had taken a few doses the pain subsided. The medicine seemed to go directly where the pain was."

"Have you had any return of the pain?"

"I have not suffered any to speak of since. I used only three bottles and consider it the best medicine for rheumatism that I know of. I recommended it to a gentleman in St. Louis who had his mother use some and was very much pleased with the result. I have recommended it to different persons, and in every instance where it was used it gave entire satisfaction."

J. A. Wilson, the well-known photographer, 6 and 8 Main St., New Albany, tells an equally interesting story of how Athlophoros cured him of rheumatism:

"I only used one bottle," he says. "The rheumatism was in my arms and I had sharp, shooting pains. I was suffering and complaining a great deal, when a friend coming into my gallery one morning asked me what the trouble was. I said it was rheumatism. Said my friend: 'I was reading of a medicine that is for the cure of rheumatism and neuralgia. It struck me forcibly, as it did not claim to cure every complaint that flesh is heir to.' When I asked him what it was he said the name was Athlophoros. I bought a bottle on the strength of what he said. That was all I needed. I used the one bottle over six months ago and have not had a pain or an ache from rheumatism since."

From Greencastle, Ind., D. L. Southard has this to say of what Athlophoros did for him:

"When Bishop Bowman brought me a bottle of Athlophoros I was suffering greatly from rheumatism and could scarcely move. I began taking the medicine on Thursday morning. At 9 P. M. I went to sleep and slept until 6 o'clock Friday morning, when I got up and said to my wife: 'Dear, look here, I am well.' At the first I was so much better that I stopped using the medicine and the rheumatism came back. The second attack was not stopped so easily, but still in double the time the Athlophoros removed the pain. The medicine had no unpleasant effect, but seemed to quiet, soothe and give relief."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1886.

In the absence of Rev. A. P. Jones, the preacher at Frankfort, Spink County, Dakota, on a recent Sunday, his wife preached a sermon, and the congregation now want the male Jones to stay away all the time or let his wife do the preaching.

C. P. HUNTINGTON, of Central and Southern Pacific Railroad fame, sticks to a resolution made years ago to have two days of rest every week. He does not visit his office on Saturdays, and refuses to be bothered with routine business of any sort from Friday night until Monday morning.

JAMES WALKER, who died in Uniontown, Ohio, recently, was a miser, and had accumulated about $20,000, which he had invested in United States bonds to escape taxation. In summer his principal food was clover leaves and bran, and in winter he spent most of his time in bed and lived on raw cornmeal.

MRS. ELIZABETH E. G. EMERSON, who died in Rochester recently under circumstances indicating great poverty, left a fortune of $160,000. $60,000 of which is bequeathed to the Presbyterian Church of that city and the rest to the children and grandchildren of the Rev. D. W. Eastman, of Smithville, Canada, her adopted father.

A COLUMBUS, Wyoming Territory, man and wife drove several miles to a grist mill, carrying with them several sacks of corn and their child, which had a bad case of whooping cough. While the corn was being ground the child was kept in the hopper until the grain all ran out. They had heard that such treatment would cure whooping cough.

IN the Buffalo Express a writer remembers George M. Pullman, the palace-car millionaire, as he lived at Albion in his young manhood. His mother and two sisters were dependent upon him for support, and he was diligent in caring for them. When he was not at work he was somewhat "dandified" in appearance, and was a great social favorite.

ALEXANDER G. DRAKE, a colored carpenter of Louisville, is coming into prominence as a temperance revivalist. He is 59 years old, an ex-slave, and is said to be doing good. His plan of work is to secure signers to a pledge which binds them for three months, a year, or for life, as they may elect. The pledge is unique, and reads: "I do sincerely hope that if I drink beer or whisky until (date named here), without being considered sick, that bad luck may be mine the remainder of my life, so help me God."

SEVEN Philadelphia newsboys engaged in a pie-eating match for the amusement of Apollo Senate, Knights of Sparta. The pies were large, thick, very juicy, and made of cherries. The boy who, without the aid of knife, fork, or finger, first finished his pie was to have a dollar. Every boy was paid fifty cents in addition. The pies were on a narrow table, and after each boy's hands had been tied behind him, time was called. In five minutes Jimmy Dougherty had eaten every crumb, licked the plate clean, and looked like a painted devil in a pantomime. Two of the boys were down on their knees, having dropped their pies on the floor.

IF there ever was a woman who deserved a pension from the State of Massachusetts, writes a Boston correspondent, it is Mrs. Mary Walker, who works in the office of the State printers, Wright & Potter, as a proof-reader. She has been employed twenty years as a proof-reader for this firm, and many as are the blue-books of acts and resolves that cheery Clerk Gifford has intoned in his twenty-eight years of service, Mrs. Walker's record has a much wider extent. She does not content herself with the exciting chronicles of the House and Senate journals, calendars and documents. She peruses annually thirteen sets of "Pub. Docs.," from the Governor's message down to the reports of the superintendents of the different lunatic asylums.

LAST week Senator Harrison's law partner went among the republican employes in the government building at Indianapolis and collected money with which to defeat the democratic township ticket there last Monday. Senator Harrison can startle the senate with this information, if his head can encompass the contemptible nature of the business from a republican standpoint.

HON. DAN MCDONALD, editor of the Plymouth Democrat, denies that he is a candidate for auditor of state or any other office, as he says, in the gift of the "steel-ribbed" and "rock-rooted" democracy of Indiana or elsewhere. Mr. McDonald says there was a time when he considered his candidacy equivalent to the perpetuity of the republic, and adds: "After the convention adjourned I left the city of concentric circles with a heavy heart, supposing, on account of my defeat, the country would be ruined, and the democratic party, which had 'borne the whips and scorns of time, the law's delay and the insolence of office,' would naturally drift into 'innocuous desuetude' and be sent to the demnition bow-wows! I have been much surprised in watching the current of events to observe that my defeat created no perceptible shock, and that everything has moved along as smoothly as if I had never had an existence."

PROF. GRINNON, of Austin, Texas, has invented a machine for condensing clouds of vapor and causing them to fall to the earth in the form of rain. A condensing compound is enclosed in a brass case or shell, with a conical point, eighteen inches in length, and an explosive substance operated by a time fuse regulates the moment of discharge. This projectile is thrown into the clouds by means of a machine mounted on wheels and resembling a light field gun. It is fixed on a pivot in such a way that it can be pointed in any direction by means of a lever. This machine is said to be a wonderful success, and its inventor claims to be able, with its aid, to cause rain to fall at any moment. Oceans of water are carried over Texas in the form of nimbus clouds during the summer months, but owing to the regularity and even temperature of the wind the clouds are carried inland, to be condensed by the more varied winds of Arkansas and Indian territory. By the use of this machine it is expect to avert the damaging drougths so common in Texas.

Sick Headache.—Thousands who have suffered intensely with sick headache say that Hood's Sarsaparilla has completely cured them. One gentleman thus relieved, writes: "Hood's Sarsaparilla is worth its weight in gold." Reader, if you are a sufferer with sick headache, give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. It will do you positive good. Made by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists. 100 doses $1

H. M. Hoxie, Gould's western lieutenant, is an Iowan. He is self-made, for once he was a stable boy.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle
Jan. 19-eodawly.

DR. A. C. HOXSIE'S CERTAIN CROUP CURE.—This preparation, a private and original prescription, was extensively used in an unlimited practice for many years, with perfect success by the late A. C. Hoxsie, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y. Having thoroughly tested and tried this remedy, he had no hesitation in pronouncing it positive, swift and sure to cure Croup in its most aggravated form, when administered promptly and according to directions. Its powerful and direct effect upon the diseased mucous membrane, render it particularly invaluable to those living at a distance from a physician—as it is seldom necessary to call in professional aid, if the "Certain Croup Cure" is near at hand. While powerful and effectual, it contains no opium in any form, nor any drug which can have a deleterious or injurious effect upon the system. The most delicate infant may take it, as directed, with perfect safty. Price $1.00. For sale by all first-class druggists, wholesale and retail. dec22-eodawâm

Pope Leo's oratorical action is said to be a curious study. His speeches are meditated, weighed and learned beforehand, and his gesticulation extremely violent. Sometimes one would think he was delivering a terrible harrangue, when he was in reality delivering a studied homily.

You Who Lead Sedentary Lives

will find great relief from constipation, headache and nervousness by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator. It is a simple, harmless, vegetable compound, sure to relieve you and can do no injury. Persons of sedentary habits often suffer with kidney affections. If they would maintain the strength of the digestive organs and improve the quality of the blood by taking the Regulator it would restore the kidneys to health and vigor.

THEATRICAL MANAGERS.

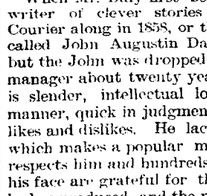

What They Are Like In And Out Of Their Profession.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, March 29.—There is no class of men who are more talked about and who are less known, who work harder for the public and who receive less credit for their efforts, than theatrical managers. There are a few managers who are familiar to the eye of the public. Lester Wallack, Tony Pastor and possibly one or two more are well known figures on the street. But it is safe to say that not one out of a hundred people who are made to laugh at the refined humor of his plays, who marvel at his excellently trained company, or who admire his tastefully decorated theatre, recognize Mr. Augustin Daly in the spare, thoughtful-looking man who glides through the luxurious foyer like a well-bred undertaker, clad in sombre raiment, and a hat of the style which was worn in bygone ages crowning his rather long hair. Ten people will turn on Broadway to look at Harry Dixey to one who will recognize his handsome manager, Mr. E. E. Rice.

Yet if money is to be raised for some great public enterprise or charity the managers are the first ones applied to, and they never are slow in responding. If a play is put on the boards which proves a great hit the success is ascribed to the genius of the star, the excellence of the company or the worth of the piece. If, on the contrary, it is a failure it is due to the stupidity of the manager. The box office receipts are the salve which reconciles the hard working manager to public neglect and misinterpretation.

In speaking of New York managers, Lester Wallack naturally comes first in one's mind, both on account of seniority and popularity, though, in truth, Mr. Wallack is much better as an actor than as a manager. He has been on the New York boards since 1847, when, at the age of 28—for he was born on Jan. 1, 1819—he made his first appearance as Sir Charles Coldstream. He at once became the popular idol, and though now 67 years old the girls still fall in love with his handsome face and charming manner of playing the young man. He began his managerial career in 1852, in Wallack's old theatre, on Broadway, near Broome street. Nine years later he opened the theatre now the Star, on the corner of Thirteenth street and Broadway, and in 1882 the present house, on the corner of Broadway and Thirtieth street, was completed. Mr. Wallack is still a handsome man; courteous in manner, quick in perception and generous in impulse. He has done much to elevate the tone of the stage from an artistic standpoint, and his theatre is one of the most fashionable in New York. His son, Arthur, now takes much of the burden of management off his father's shoulders, and is an active and popular young man, possessed of much of his father's magnetic charm of manner. Mr. Wallack has collected about him a company of good actors, yet no plays are quite so popular as those in which Mr. Wallack himself appears.

LESTER WALLACK.

Mr. Augustin Daly does not appear on his own stage, but he infuses an equally distinct personality into his theatre by writing his own plays; or, to be more accurate, he writes the most successful ones. Mr. Daly has an amiable weakness in the direction of old English comedies and presents one or more during each season, and while it is generally admitted that no company can produce the old comedies more acceptably, it does not reconcile audiences which are accustomed to Mr. Daly's own delicate humor to the more labored wit of the early English dramatists. Most of Mr. Daly's later work has been "adapted from the German" and bears the same resemblance to the original as a piece of delicate lace does to the spool of thread from which it is made. The material may be German, but the artistic touches, the charming humor, the delicately worked-out situations are Mr. Daly's.

When Mr. Daly first became known as a writer of clever stories for The Sunday Courier along in 1858, or thereabouts, he was called John Augustin Daly by his friends, but the John was dropped when he became a manager about twenty years ago. Mr. Daly is slender, intellectual looking, nervous in manner, quick in judgment and strong in his likes and dislikes. He lacks the magnetism which makes a popular man, yet every one respects him and hundreds who do not know his face are grateful for the delightful plays he has produced, and the perfect company he has formed. Mr. Daly is a martinet in stage matters, and is said to be very severe at rehearsals, though this is but a rumor, for but few outsiders have been allowed to witness a rehearsal in his theatre, and he keeps an immense Saint Bernard dog, Pique by name, at the stage door, who grows fat and lazy from a diet of would-be stage door mashers.

Mr. A. M. Palmer, the present manager of the Madison Square theatre, is a small man with a pale face, gray hair and gray side whiskers. Mr. Palmer is the son of a New England clergyman, and there is a curious mixture of the minister and the man of the world in his manners. He lacks the genial bonhomie which characterizes many of our managers, and impresses one as a cold, calculating man of business. For many years he was librarian of the Mercantile library, a post which he resigned to go into partnership with Sheridan Shook, in the management of the Union Square theatre. He took the Madison Square from the Mallory Brothers (one of them a reverend and editor of a religous weekly, by the way) and has made it a pecuniary success.

A. M. PALMER.

He has lately come prominently before the public through an interview, in which he ascribes the very much talked of and very little existing immorality of the stage to the growth of burlesque. Considering the extremely Frenchy tone of many of the plays which have been brought out by Mr. Palmer, this is rather funny. The question seems to be as to which has the most demoralizing influence, a pretty woman, in scant display, who does nothing immodest on the stage, or the presentation of social villainy in a dress suit. The question is still agitating the public mind.

Mr. Edward E. Rice is the champion of burlesque and the most successful manager in that field. Mr. Rice used to be a clerk in a Boston music store. He composes music, manages two or three companies and has put more pretty girls on the stage than any other manager in the country. Mr. Rice is essentially a popular man, genial, ready-witted and generous. He is a charming companion and a valuable friend. He has seen much of the unpleasant side of life, but has been jolly and persevering through it all. When he was in hard luck he was as cheerful in borrowing as he is now in lending. A story characteristic both of Mr. Rice and Mr. Stetson, is told. Rice one day sent a messenger down to Stetson, post haste, to borrow $2,500. "Hand me my check book, quick," exclaimed Stetson as he read the note.

"But," urged his bookkeeper, "you are not in such a hurry to lend to Rice. He has nothing to pay with."

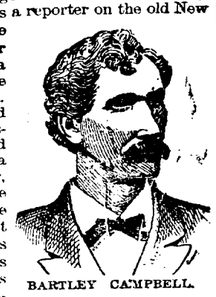

"Hand me that check book," commanded Stetson. "If he comes down here he'll make it $5,000."

Mr. Rice is assisted in his managerial ventures by his brother Charles, a tall, soldierly looking man, quiet, energetic and capable.

Mr. Rudolph Aronson rejoices in being considered the handsomest as well as the youngest manager in the city. To him and his brother Edward the New York public is grateful for having conceived and erected the most beautiful place of amusement in the city—the Casino. Mr. Aronson is slender, graceful, with a pale, refined face, a handsome dark mustache, and large, soft brown eyes. He is a composer of considerable merit, as well as a clever manager, and much of his dance music is very popular. Mr. Aronson's Casino scheme, with its Moorish arches, its fairy-like roof garden and its entertainment of well sung and magnificently staged comic opera, was long regarded as a chimera by his brother managers, but when the Casino began to materialize its success was assured. James D. Fish, of Marine bank fame, Ferdinand Ward and Gen. Grant were among the stockholders who furnished money for the enterprise. But it is to Mr. Aronson's pluck, energy and refined taste that the Casino is due.

RUDOLPH ARONSON.

One of the most curious compounds in the New York managerial museum is Bartley Campbell. He was a reporter on the old New York Star in those days when a dollar was regarded as a fabulous fortune by a Star man. Then he wheeled bricks in a Pittsburg brick yard and reported on a Pittsburg paper, and all the time he wrote plays. Some people claim that he wrote plays while he was asleep, and it is charitable to suppose that some of his earlier efforts were produced under those conditions. About seven years ago he wrote "My Partner," and then his success began. He took out all his old plays, turned them over and produced them again. He is his own manager, and has made a fortune after years of toil and waiting, and few will deny that he deserves it. To be sure he sometimes fails to draw a sufficiently broad distinction between himself and Shakespeare, but conceit is pardonable in a successful man. The same exuberant imagination which he used to display in his concoction of newspaper reports enters into the composition of his plays.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL.

He has not yet worked in the pig story which made him famous in Pittsburg journalism, but its dramatization is only a question of time. He came into The Pittsburg Dispatch office one morning with a very sensational story of how a pig had devoured a new born infant in a squatter's cabin in Pittsburg's Irishtown. It was published and the next day a delegation from Irishtown, armed with baseball bats, clubs, slung-shots and similar bric-a-brac, visited The Dispatch office to remonstrate with the editor. Campbell was sent to verify his story. After some time he returned breathless, but triumphant, waving about a ream of closely-written "copy." "It's all right," he exclaimed, "only it was twins."

Campbell is a tall, loose-jointed man with a hesitating manner and clothes which never by any chance fit him. He is generous in his own peculiar way and no appeal from one who has known him in the days of his adversity goes unheeded.

A large man, with a queer eye, a genial manner and a big heart is John Stetson, of the Fifth Avenue theatre. He began life as a devil in a printing office and a professional athlete, and has risen to his present position by hard work and good sense. He is a familiar figure in the Brunswick café, where he delights to stand with a congenial crowd and tell stories and gossip until all hours in the morning. It is here that Mr. Stetson gets off some of the brightest bon mots, which go the rounds of the clubs the next day as Stetson's latest, and it is here that he occasionally makes the mistakes which have gained him the reputation of being the managerial Mrs. Malaprop. Most of the stories are made up and hung on to Stetson because everybody knows his good nature, but occasionally he makes a comical blunder.

When Joe Brooks, the eminent Hebrew theatrical speculator, was suing Charlie Byrne for libel, Stetson, Ned Gilmore and a lot more were subpœnaed to appear in court at 10 o'clock in the morning. They concluded it would be no use to go to bed if they had to get up so early, and they prepared to sit it out. About 4 o'clock they began to get cross and sleepy, and wish Byrne and Brooks and the suit in various warm places. "John," said one of the party to Stetson, "you are a mutual friend. Why don't you smooth out this matter between Charlie and Brooks?"

"Oh! I've tried, but its no use," said Stetson. "There's too much vermin in both of 'em."

It took the boys some time to find out that he meant venom. But Mr. Stetson is a rich man, a successful man, a shrewd business man, universally popular and respected, and he can afford to laugh at such jokes.

One of the most misunderstood men in New York is John Duff, of the Standard theatre. Heavily built and determined looking, with an expression of solemnity on his face and a deep rooted detestation for dead heads in his heart, it must be admitted that he is not a man that a timid person would care to "brace for passes." Yet, after all, the severity is only a surface indication. If a dead head can really do anything in return for his seats no man is more generous than John Duff; he has an independent man's dislike of being swindled, that is all. When once he makes a friendship it lasts. People often mistake his bluff manner for rudeness, but in reality he is one of the kindest of men. There is no hypocrisy about John Duff; if he don't like a man he says so, and if he does like him his preference is not exhibited by empty compliments. He is an able manager, having been largely instrumental in building up the present prosperity of Daly's. He now stands behind his son, James C. Duff, at the Standard, and advises and suggests much to the profit of the young man, who is a clever, pains-taking, quiet young fellow, with just a touch of his father's manner, which will probably develop as he grows older. ALLAN FORMAN.

A SHOP GIRLS ROMANCE.

One of the Incidents Which Lead on to Tragedies.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April 5.—One learns to read below the surface of life here, if one learns anything. Little romances, which often grow into big ruins, are to be seen here any day, and almost every hour. Indeed, one can't help but see them, they are so unmistakably "under one's nose." A few weeks ago I was walking with a friend on a much thronged street just as the great shops closed. An army of salesmen, saleswomen, "bundlers," cash girls and boys and other helpers, poured out of the great doors of two or three large houses and hurried off toward their homes.

Among the pedestrians that met this moving throng was a dashing young swell, who singled out a young girl walking alone, and approaching her in the most deferential manner and the heartiest delight, greeted her with the cordiality of a warm friend. The little thing colored with pleasure and pride, and her agreeable face fairly shone with delight as the dashing youth turned and walked by her side.

"Do you see that?" said my friend. "That dude is not of that girl's sphere in life. He has waited for her and is dazzling her humble little head with his attentions and flattery."

He had stated the case correctly. The girl was a mere child. Her skirts were still somewhat above her shoe-tops, and were very thin and well-worn, though her entire costume, poor as it was, carried an atmosphere of style that many a Fifth avenue belle is not born to. Her shoulders were protected by a jaunty but thin little cape made from a "last winter's cloak," and her neat shoes, though shining with liquid blacking, were nearer the end than the beginning of their career. He was clad in warm, rich clothing. She and the young man might well have been used as models for a picture of Industrious Poverty and Idle Opulence walking arm in arm.

How pleased she was! Her eyes sparkled as she proudly stepped along and her tongue was loosened as by magic. She chattered with pleasure, smiled at every word her companion uttered, literally walked on air. Even the tiny lunch basket that swung lightly on her arm seemed to partake of her pleasure, and jostled itself back and forth in ecstacy. After a day of toil in the shop she had suddenly entered paradise. Her self-esteem and vanity, her heart, perhaps, were all touched by the lover-like deference of the elegant creature by her side.

They walked on just ahead of us across the city to Broadway, turned up that great thoroughfare and walked several squares. Then the young man stopped, excused himself on the plea of an urgent engagement, yet lingered, and made the sweet pain of parting as long as possible. At last, with many a regretful word and meaning glance, he left her and walked down Broadway, and she tripped lightly away, poor, foolish thing, so happy that the world held in that moment nothing disagreeable.

"That's the beginning," said my wise friend, looking after her with a sigh. "The end for her, perhaps, will be a hospital, or the river, or long, long days of doom and degradation. Yet nothing can be done to save her. 'Tis cruel, too, that what appears so comforting and attractive to her should be the means of destroying her. It is natural for her to be pleased with the good-looking scamp's attentions. She can't know that he is a scamp. Doubtless he seems a god to her; the very man of whom she has read in the story books, and of whom she has dreamed in her rosy day dreams. She loves refinement, good manners and beauty, and finds them not in the men with whom she is daily thrown in her humble station.

"This young swell has bought something from her in the store, most likely, and being well up in reading the signs of the affections has seen that he has made an impression on the confiding, unsophisticated little thing, and is following it up. He met her purposely this evening, of course. He is flattered, too, by the extravagant admiration she gives him. He may have nothing but good will in his heart for her. Who knows? If it were not for the tongues of what is known as "society," perhaps this little romance would not turn out a tragedy. But it will! it will! There is a heartbreak in it for the girl, poor thing. And for the youth a loss of something he would be wise to keep, whether he will be conscious of the loss or not."

My friend continued: "A girl like that has no chance in life, anyway. She has human feelings—the same longings and loves are common to all humanity—and if her heart goes where her tastes do, ten to one it goes to its own undoing. The hard worked people of the city have no society. They toil all day and are too scattered and too fatigued to have any pleasure together in the evening—yes, and too poor. Every place of entertainment costs. Even a trip to the home of a friend costs street car fare, and that is an item to those whose labor brings them in merely enough to keep themselves sheltered, fed and clothed."

I have seen these ill-matched lovers several times since on the street together at the same hour. The acquaintance has progressed rapidly. The youth has taken on an air of ownership toward the girl, and she seems very happy to be owned by such a dazzling creature. Of course, he never visits her at her home, which is some respectable but overcrowded tenement house, or some cheap boarding house, with the odor of fish and onions permanently in the dingy little parlor and gloomy hall. No, indeed, she couldn't invite him there, for many reasons. He wouldn't go if she did. It wouldn't be to his taste. No, he will continue to meet her as she goes from work until he has gained her confidence, and then he will suggest other meetings, and will continue to entertain her in ways that appear princely to her, and the end thereof will be misery. Colonel Hargitt, once a congressman from the south and a scholarly fellow, is working on the Huntington Democrat. Colonel Hargitt is a journeyman printer and every one in the fraternity knows him. His proclivity is to paint the town in its brightest color.

"This weather," said an old timer this morning, "beats my recollection for April. Instead of nice warm and pleasant days, with frequent showers, we are greeted with constant cold winds from the north and numerous snowy squalls. I can't understand the thing at all."

Rev. S. A. Northrop was the recipient of the warmest congratulations at the Baptist church last night. He has many substantial tokens of the thirty-sixth anniversary of his birth, a unique one being a purse of $36—$1 for each year of his existance. THE SENTINEL hopes he will live to see another thirty-six years go around.

Mr. William Gallison, superintendent of bridges and buildings on the southern division of the Grand Rapids and Indiana, was asked by a SENTINEL reporter when he was going to begin work on the hotel which the railroad company is to build at Long Lake. "Pretty soon now, I think. Would probably have been at work on it now if a change in the plans had not caused a delay."

Bock beer is in the market and the festive lager flows freely.

Ke-ki-on-ga Council No. 93, of the national union, will hold their semi-monthly meeting to-night.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Howe, of Lima, Ind., were in the city to-day en route to California.

Ex-Conductor James Cogan, of the Pittsburg and Fort Wayne road, is dead. He resided in Chicago.

Miss Lottie Lowry will entertain a party of young friends Friday evening, being the anniversary of her birth.

Mr. S. B. Knight, division freight agent of the Wabash at Decatur, Ill., is in the city, the guest of Agent C. H. Newton.

D. Broeking has been given a permit to build an addition to his frame house on lots 13 and 14, Wall's additton, to cost $50.

The colored jubilee singers give a concert at the temperance tabernacle, on Harrison street to-night. The people are celebrated.

Mr. Mason Long is in the city. Next Monday he will start on his summer evangelical tour, opening first at Burlington, Iowa.

Only ten days remain in which to pay taxes without penalty. But two-fifths of the city taxes have been paid. Positively no extension of time will be given.

Belle Boyde, the "Rebel Spy," lectured on newspaper reporters at the Wabash ticket office yesterday. She was especially hard on the Fort Wayne pencil pushers.

The indications for the lower lake region, as reported by the weather bureau at Washington to THE SENTINEL, are as follows: Fair weather, stationary, followed by slowly rising temperature.

"A Night Off" did not draw an exceedingly big house at the Temple last night. The play is pleasing enough for Lent and the people are rather good. Most of them were formerly with the 7-20 8 party.

Judge Hench gave these decisions yesterday: Bonewitz vs. Bonewitz and Hartman, judgment of dismissal; Northan vs. Northan, divorce, evidence heard in part; John Rulo vs. Cartwright, judgment for plaintiff for $132.40.

James B. Kenner, of Huntington, grand master of the I. O. O. F., of the state of Indiana, will be here to night to attend the opening of the new hall of Harmony lodge. He will deliver an address, as will also Enoch Cox, of this city, past grand master.

Suit has been entered by the Brown Chemical company of Baltimore, Md., against Meyer Bros., & Co., of St. Louis, for imitating the Brown's Iron Bitters. The Meyer Bros., & Co.'s firm sell the preparation as Brown's Iron Tonic, hence the prosecution.

H. M. Jones, the ball player who is running an engine on the Grand Rapids and Indiana road will not take any engagement this season on account of the opposition of his wife. Mr. Jones played with the first Fort Wayne nine and married a Fort Wayne girl, Miss Fordney.

The Romey-Archer fight continues to be a source of revenue to the squires. Yesterday Justice France fined R. L. Romey $10.25 for assault on Charley Archer. Now Romey filed an affidavit in Ryan's court, charging Archer with provoke on Charley Thurman. Justice Ryan has this case.

"Bishop Knickerbacher and Rev. W. N. Webbe made a very pleasant visit here last week. On Friday evening there was a class of nine presented for confirmation by Rev. Spaulding. The bishop will return again in June, at which time there will be another class prepared for confirmation," says a Lima, Ind., correspondent.

"John L. Gallup has traded his livery barn in this city to A. T. Ross for stock in the Kendallville Refrigerator company. John started out last Monday to superintend the erection of a large refrigerator at Fort Wayne and expects soon to take the road in the interest of said firm. He will make the business hum, and we wish him success," says the Kendallville News.

The annual conference of the Evangelical church, held at Dayton last week made the following appointments for the Fort Wayne district: D. S. Oaks, presiding elder; Fort Wayne, Jacob Miller; Kendallville, A. Geist; Waterloo, I. B. Fisher; Edgerton, W. H. Brightmyer; Hicksville, S. B. King; Defiance, P. A. Orth; Van Wert, S. S. Albert; St. Mary's, F. Rousch; Newville, J. Hoffman; Huntington, J. Fisher; Celina, H. Arlen; Webster, G. B. Holdeman.

The newspapers of Garrett report housebreakers and thieves in that place.

Mrs. George Trenam has accepted a position with H. W. Matson the architect.

John Agard, arrested for drunkenness last night, was let off by the mayor this morning.

Judge Hench to-day dismissed the case of the Seiberling Machine Company vs. Anton Sorg.

The Peru Journal has changed hands, the new editor and proprietor being Richard Kilgore.

Mr. Walter Wells has accepted a position as book keeper for the Beckford furniture company.

There will be an interesting institute at school house No. 4, Wayne township, Saturday afternoon.

Mike Nelligan has resigned his place in the Wabash shop to accept a position in the Pittsburg machine shop.

H. G. Wagner writes from California that he will not return before May 1. Mrs. Wagner's health is improving.

Miss Mattie McDonald has returned to her home in Chicago, after a two month's visit to her friend, Miss Anna Farnen.

Capt. Scott Swan is a whole army, out among the soldiers. He is always pleasant and jolly and has hosts of friends everywhere.

A fellow named Boner struck and cut Marshal Johnson, of Monroeville, with brass knuckles last Monday and there is war in that neighborhood.

Mr. Barney O'Connor has returned from Dallas, Texas, where he and his brother are interested in a big ranche, a bank and the Dallas Gas works.

"Mrs. J. J. Studer, of Fort Wayne, the lady with whom Miss Minnie Boon boarded, accompanied the remains and Mrs. Boon to their home last Saturday, and has since remained, doing all in her power to comfort the stricken family and to care for Mrs. Boon, to whom the severe and unexpected shock came near proving fatal," says the Angola Herald.

The first annual re-union of the Sultana survivors will be held at Toledo, April 27. All survivors of the Sultana disaster are requested to be present. The day meetings will be held in the G. A. R. hall, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. and 2 p. m. and the evening meeting in the annex to Memorial Hall, beginning at 8 o'clock, which will be an experience meeting, and to which the public is cordially invited. Mr. Louis Schirmeyer, of this city, is one of the Sultana survivors and will meet with his old comrades. He will arrange transportation for all who call on him.

"The Creole" was presented at the Academy again last night with Miss Granger in her magnificent creation of Cora. The attendance was good and the audience was one of the finest that has ever been seen in a Fort Wayne theater. To-night "Camille" will be given. At the to-morrow matinee "Engaged," one of the most delicious comedy bits will be given, with Miss Olive West in her unique portrayal of Belinda Treherne. To-morrow night "Frou Frou," which delighted a large audience at the matinee yesterday, will be repeated. At the Saturday matinee Miss Granger will appear in "Camille," and Saturday night in "The Creole."

Nate Bloomhuff Dead.

Nate Bloomhuff died this morning at half-past 10 o'clock, from a lingering attack of consumption. Nate was yet a young man, and a few years ago was stout and robust, the last man one would suspect of a pulmonary complaint. He was the son of Sidney Bloomhuff, whose homestead still stands on West Wayne street. Mr. Bloomhuff lived on Miner street, and from that place his funeral will be announced later.

Wabash Conductor Suicides.

Lewis R. McCord, formerly a Wabash brakeman, committed suicide at St. Louis by cutting his throat from ear to ear, during the absence of his family. Mr. McCord was in good circumstances, well known and highly esteemed several years ago. Latterly he has been unfortunate, apparently through no fault of his own; but the labor question has resulted seriously to him, he being frequently out of employment. His last situation was that of a conductor on the Wabash road, but he had lost it some months ago. He was without means even for the neccessaries of life at his home, 1441 St. Louis avenue, and had a wife and child dependent upon him. He was a Mason.

THE THIRTIETH.

The Gallant Veterans Have a Pleasant Reunion at Patriotic Warsaw.

"Warsaw is a patriotic town." remarked Cy Fike, last evening, and it is. In that pleasant village of the lakes the survivors of the Thirtieth Indiana and their friends held a most enjoyable reunion yesterday. The heroes were royally entertained and feasted by the people of Warsaw, and in the opera house the soldiers renewed acquaintances and retold the stories of the war.

At the afternoon session Col. Joe W. Whitacre, of New Haven, was chosen president; John S. Provines, of Spencerville, vice-president; Jasper Ohlwine, of Cromwell, Ind., secretary; Captain M. A. Kirt, of Sturgis, Mich., treasurer. W. D. Maier, of this city, was added to the executive committee.

Capt. J. B. White, Col. C. A. Munson, Capt. A. H. Dougall, Col. I. B. McDonald, Col. George Humphrey and Capt. C. L. Lewis addressed the great assembly last evening and Capt. Jack Kensill recited an original poem and responded to an encore in his usual happy way and carried the audience by storm.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the Thirtieth regiment at New Haven, this countty, April 7, 1887.

Among those present from Fort Wayne were the following: Col. C. A. Zollinger, William Adair, Thomas Toomey, Morris Zollinger, Col. O. D. Hurd, Capt. J. B. White, W. D. Maier, Charles W. Thurman, James Harper, P. H. Johnson, Cyrus Fike, John Kensill, John Seaton, Clarles Centlivre, Col. Charles A. Munson, Joseph Lumbard, Col. Geo. Humphrey, Jefferson Scott, J. G. Graham, Tom Sullivan, Capt. Scott Swan, W. J. Kerr, Col. I. B. McDonald, Capt. A. H. Dougal, Christ Boseker, H. O. Crosby, Col. J. W. Younge, Capt. C. L. Lewis, Geo. Reiter, Mike Fordney, Frank Gibson and the city editor of THE SENTINEL.

Gen. Reub Williams has these notes in the Warsaw Times:

Lieutenant-Colonel Hurd, of the Thirtieth, of Fort Wayne, is with the boys to-day, as usual.

Marx Frank, of Fort Wayne, formerly in business in this place, came out with the Fort Wayne delegation to attend the reunion. He is looking first-rate.

J. B. White, captain of Co. I, Thirtieth Indiana regiment, had charge of a special train which left Fort Wayne this morning, bringing those who are to attend the reunion here to-day.

Col. George Humphrey, Captain Scott Swan and Captain Allen Dougall, of Fort Wayne, and formerly of the 88th Indiana Infantry, joined the boys of the 30th in their reunion to-day.

Sergeant Jack Kensil, of Fort Wayne, the "sweet singer" of all soldier assemblies, reuned with the 30th to-day. Jack makes things lively wherever he may be, and especially enjoys such occasions.

The old flag which the Thirtieth Indiana carried through many of the battles of the late war will be here to-day. The staff was shattered with bullets and the flag itself was cut in many places. It will be in charge of Ex-Mayor Randall, of Fort Wayne.

Among the visitors attending the Thirtieth re-union to-day is Col. Charles A. Zollinger, of Fort Wayne. Mr. Zollinger was the first lieutenant of company D, of the thirtieth, and afterwards became the colonel of the 129th Indiana infantry, and belonged to General Hovey's division at the beginning of the Atlanta campaign. Colonel Zollinger is now pension agent for Indiana.

SCARLET AND RYAN.

The Gentlemen Were Legally Elected and Can Take Their Seats Under a Supreme Court Decision.

The election of last Monday has in store another surprise for the people of Fort Wayne, and it is nothing less than that Mr. Chester Scarlet and Daniel Ryan were legally elected justices of the peace last Monday.

In 1883 the legislature enacted a law restricting or confining the number of peace justices in cities and towns to three. Before that the number was five, and here, as elsewhere, the new statutory enactment was accepted and two squires were legislated ont of office. At Indianapolis Justice Feibleman refused to relinquish his commission and appealed his case to the supreme court. The unanimous decision of that tribunal is recorded in the 98th Indiana, on page 515, and it wholly repeals and declares unconstitutional the act of 1883 in the case of Feibleman vs. The Board of Commissioners of Marion county. Under this judgment Wayne township is entitled to five justices of the peace, and Messrs. Scarlet and Ryan having the highest number of votes after France, Harding and Hays, can take oath of office and immediately qualify. The decision is in the plainest English and every lawyer consulted to-day, agreed that the law of 1883 was repealed, and the enactment of 1867 stands good.

John W. Abbott, representing Miss Mattie Vickers, is in the city arranging for the appearance of his star Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Academy. Miss Vickers stars in "Jacquine, or Paste and Diamonds," and is said to be very clever. She is pert and dances prettily.

WORKING WOMEN.

Session of the Home Missionary Association.

The annual meeting of the women's missionary societies of the Fort Wayne presbytery was opened yesterday afternoon in an address of welcome by Miss Carrie B. Sharp, of this city, and nicely responded to by Mrs. W. S. Chipman, of Warsaw. In the evening Dr. Moffat gave an in interesting address on missions. After the address all present were invited up stairs to partake of a bountiful supper.

TO-DAY'S SESSIONS.

The session was opened by devotional exercises by Mrs. L. R. Hartman, of this city. Her talk was very fine and carefully followed.

The annual address by the president, Mrs. D. B. Wells, of this city, was next in order. Mrs. Wells spoke for fully twenty-five minutes, and to say that the address was interesting is putting it very mild. It was a grand production and as many delegates remarked, the finest annual address ever delivered since the organization of the association.

Following the address reports were read from different societies and all seemed to be in a flourishing condition. Mrs. M. E. Goodman's report of the history of the Presbyterian society was ordered printed. Mrs. I. B. Webber, of Warsaw, spoke very nicely about "Praise Meetings," and Mrs. C. P. Reynolds, of Decatur, talked on "Methods of Giving." Many others spoke and the morning sessions was one that will long be remembered by all present. After the session the delegates stepped to the front and reported as follows.

Mrs. S. J. Shields, Goshen; Mrs. B. A. Moore, Mrs. George Whitacre, Mrs. Matilda Blackburn, Mrs. A. D. Purviance, Mrs. James Slack, Mrs. Wm. Hessin, Mrs N. Sessions, Mrs. Lesh, Huntington; Mrs. S. T. Cooper, Mrs. S. B. West, Miss F. Cory, Miss J. L. Beissel, Mrs. R. Thompson, Lima; Mrs. T. E. Hughes, Mrs. B. J. Bogue, Mrs. J. F. Clugston, LaGrange; Mrs. Hawley, Mrs. James Ewing, Miss Effie Hessin, Miss Anna Bratton, Huntington; Mrs. M. M. Lawson, Mrs. Craig, Ossian; Mrs. John Henry, Mrs. David Craig, Mrs. Hiram Hatfield, Mrs. Eliza Johnson, Ossian; Mrs. M. E. Goodman, Mrs. M. A. Shulze, Mrs. S. J. Mitchell, Mrs. Dr. Teal, Mrs. Campbell, Kendallville; Mrs. Chipman, Mrs. Lest, Mrs. Dr. Webber, Mrs. Smith, Warsaw; Mrs. Crim, Toledo, Mrs. Garvin, Miss Clark, West Wayne; Mrs. Roether, Mrs. M. C. Hartman, Mrs. Ensley, Mrs. J. A. Barnes, Mrs. Ralston, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Moss, Mrs. Forkner, Miss Chamberlain, Auburn; Mrs. C. P. Reynolds, Mrs. Rout, Mrs. Dr. Dorwin, Mrs. Weymer, Mrs. A. Compston, Decatur; Mrs. A. M. Pope, Miss Pope, Mrs. E. G. Reynolds, Miss Mary Kenyon, Elkhart; Mrs. E. W. Walker, Mrs. J. B. Hascoll, Goshen.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was opened by devotional service, led by Mrs. H. J. Helm, of Chicago.

"Methods of Work for Young People," was then pleasantly discussed by Miss Isabelle Pope, of Elkhart.

Miss Mary Clark, of Tabiz, Persia, delivered an interesting address. She is a cultured lady, an interesting speaker and explains her work in Persia so well and easy that one never tires of her talk.

Miss Tura Campbell, of Kendallville, spoke on "Plans for Regular Meetings."

Mrs. H. T. Helen's address was very fine. She is a noble woman and talks so easily and in such an earnest and sincere manner that the entire audience was held spell-bound.

To-night's session will commence at 7:30 o'clock sharp. Mrs. H. T. Helen will talk on "Foreign Missions," and Dr. R. H. Allen, D. D., of Pittsburg, will deliver an address on "His Work Among the Free Man."

COME OUT.

A Good Supper for Only Twenty-five Cents—Ladies Free.

The ladies having in charge the missionary meeting will give a supper this evening, commencing at 6 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church building. Free of charge to all ladies and delegates. The gentlemen will be charged the small sum of 25 cents, to be appropriated for missionary work. Come ont and get a good meal.

DANGER!

Still Hovers Over the Turbulent Roads.

A Masked Mob is Now Marching to Destroy Long Bridge at Waco, Texas.

No Bloodshed To-day, But Every Probability That the Worst Is Yet to Come.

THE STRIKE.

How the Trouble Fares To-day in the Southwest.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

East St. Louis, Ill., April 8.—Platform men at the Ohio and Mississippi yard, who were frightened away by a crowd of strikers, returned late yesterday evening and were employed again this morning. The road is prepared to handle all freight that will offer. A full force platform men have been engaged to begin handling freight at the Vandalia freight house. Deputy sheriffs are stationed in the yards to keep them clear of strikers.

POWDERLY AT WORK.

New York, April 8.—A Times special from Scranton, Pa., dated yesterday, says: For the first time since his return home from New York Mr. Powderly was able to leave his sick room to-day and give his personal attention to a mass of correspondence accumulated during his illness. He expressed himself as highly pleased with the proposition to appoint a congressional committee to investigate the Gould troubles. The country ought to know who is at fault in this business, and the blame should be placed precisely where it belongs, no matter on whom it is. He thought both sides had learned a valuable lesson from this conflict, namely, the folly of striking, and expressed it as his opinion that this would be the last railroad strike the country would have in many years.

A MASKED MOB.

Waco, Tex., April 8.—A large force has gone to Long bridge, nine miles south of this point, to protect it from a mob of fifty masked men coming from Leorana, Texas, to destroy the bridge.

PERFECT ORDER.

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—The striking Knights of Labor at East St. Louis have preserved perfect order. This morning several trains were sent out and as many more have arrived.

THE DANGER PAST.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

Cincinnati, April 8.—There is much relief this morning in the prospect of an averted flood. The weather is fair and promises to remain so. The heavy snow of yesterday has practically disappeared, producing no perceptible effect on the streams. The river for six hours, ending at 9 a. m., has risen two inches. It then stood fifty-five feet and one inch. News from Cattlettsburg and Point Pleasant this morning, is that the river is falling at both points. The business men are confident the flood will not reach a point of extreme danger. The heaviest loss so far is that of the Gardners in the Mill Creek valley, where acres of vegetables are wholly destroyed.

Bloody Border Affairs.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

Laredo, Texas, April 7.—At a demonstration here yesterday by the democrats, to celebrate the funeral, as they called it, of the party known as Huarachas, the latter attacked the parade with Winchesters and revolvers and a bloody riot ensued, in which five men were killed and three wounded, all the killed but one being Mexicans. A company of United States troops dispersed the mob and restored order.

Sun Wah Married.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

Chicago, April 8.—Sun Wah, a Chinaman, was married yesterday to Miss Augusta Miller, a German girl, 22 years old. There are now five white women in Chicago, married to Chinamen, and all are Germans.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Who Propose Carrying Our Citadels of Sin by Storm.

New York, April 6.—There are few newspaper readers who have not heard of the campaign against old "Nick," which is being carried on by the Salvation Army on the Atlantic seaboard.

Your correspondent met recently Gen. Thomas E. Moore, the commander of the American Salvation Army, who talked freely of the plans and methods of their forces, from which the following was gathered:

GEN. THOMAS E. MOORE.

No one would suppose to look into the pleasant face and mild eyes of Gen. Moore that he would be able to cope with such a crafty and treacherous enemy as his is said to be. Nevertheless, I question if the enemy has a more thorough knowledge of the weaknesses of the human family than this Gen. Moore. He was for a time an outfitter, or something of the kind for the British army, and there he saw how men would scramble for the privilege of enlisting as soon as the prospect of a war became known, and often the more hazardous the undertaking appeared the more eager were men to risk their lives. Here were men forsaking business and home, often encouraged by their wives, to fight England's senseless battles in the torrid heat of Africa or among the fevers of Asia. Moore saw this fondness of man for noise and show and excitement and conquest could be turned to account in Christian warfare.

It is said that it was Mrs. Booth, the wife of Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army in England, who first suggested the idea. She is a born Yankee, and having witnessed how men, sensible enough at other times, throught the simple agency of a drum, fife and torch-light procession, during one of our political campaigns, will become so enthused as to accept any political doctrine their leaders give them. Here was the suggestion for a novel Christian campaign. Gen. Booth being a thorough soldier, as well as a clever business man, modeled the scheme after the plan of an army, adopting the same terms throughout as being ones with which the masses were already familiar. Gen. Moore, the outfitter, designed the costumes, and thus was this army organized.

Gen. Moore says the "hides" originated with the apostles, was taken up by Ignatius Loyola in the sixteenth century, but revived in its fullness by William Booth in 1865 in London.

The army overran England in fifteen years, when they undertook the conquest of this country. In 1881 the invaders landed on our coast and effected a footing in Baltimore. To-day they have constructed forts and barracks in all the principal cities east of the Mississippi, though their skirmish lines extend far beyond, one outpost having been effected in Idaho.

Capt. Emma Westbrook, "Stonewall Jackson." Field Inspector M. K. Light, "Kansas Jack."

Out of some 300 officers stationed in the 150 posts in this country are selected two of the typical ones. Capt. Westbrook was one of the first Salvation "lassies" to land on our shores. She is not possessed of a very liberal education. Grammar and she are perfect strangers, and though she plays fast and loose with her h's she is a worker who has not ceased shouting since the day she landed. Field Inspector and Treasurer Milton K. Light, strange to say, is a converted New York drummer.

Until 1881 the Salvation Army in this country was under the charge of Gen. Booth of England, Gen. Moore being simply a commissioner. When it became necessary to acquire land here, on which to construct forts, Gen. Moore found it would be impossible for Gen. Booth, being an alien, to hold the property in his name as he does all the possessions, amounting to millions, in England. So he broke off all connection with the English forces and has had his army incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, their property being held by five trustees. He also abandoned many of the "dime museum features" of the meetings. "Ash Barrel Jimmy," "The Converted Seal," and like curiosities are exhibited only by the American branch of the English army, which is also meeting with wonderful success here.

When a convert enlists in the Salvation Army he does so on the condition that he obey his superior absolutely. He is not to expect any compensation for his services. He must even supply his own uniform, and must keep himself in condition to fight, notonly all summer but night after night as long as he lives, on the principle that the enemy never sleeps, therefore he cannot. After a long and severe trial the recruit or cadet may be promoted to the rank of lieutenant, and later to captain, when he is entitled to draw pay at the rate of $8 per week from the profits of the fort's post at which he may be placed. The army funds are derived from collections, which are an important feature of the warfare. The income from this source is about $75,000 a year.

When a raid is contemplated on a new town, a captain, lieutenant and cadet are ordered to advance on it. They secure a "barracks" in the town, after which they parade the streets with a banner and drums. If they are arrested and locked up so much the better, it attracts attention. Notoriety is half the battle won. When the barracks are reached the crowd follows, and then the battle begins in earnest, ending sometimes after midnight. Next day a report is sent to headquarters of the number of prisoners captured.

Ridiculous as all this may appear, don't our people do just such fool things in campaign times? S. H. Horgan.

PERSONAL CHAT

About Men and Events of Interest in Fort Wayne.

The city of Goshen has organized an improvement association.

Noble county will elect congressional delegates the latter part of this month.

The people of Goshen and Elkhart propose to have their telephone business continue.

John H. Ragland, a Nortgern prison guard, has been sent to the hospital for the insane.

Dr. Isaac Boyd, of Valparaiso, died on Monday of heart disease, while returning from the polls.

Forty-six persons were received on Sunday into the Third Presbyterian church at New Albany.

A petition is being circulated in Indianapolis praying for the pardon of Isaac G. Seary, who is serving twenty-one years for murder.

The voters at Logansport were called upon yesterday to sign petitions for the erection of a $10,000 monument for the soldiers of that county.

John Muncie, Wabash flagman at the Main street crossing, Lafayette, for the past twenty-nine years, celebrated his birthday Monday, April 2, and, as has been the case on that day for the past four years, he found a horse shoe on the crossing.

At Lafayette, George Wilson, a drayman, struck Thomas Lonergan, a well known grocer, over the head with a dray pin, breaking his jaw and knocking all his teeth down his throat. Lonergan's injuries are probably fatal. Wilson owed Lonergan a grocery and rent bill and Lonergan dunned him, which was the crime.

"It is silly reported that the Hon. William Bunyen is a candidate for congress, and that his name will be presented to the republican congressional convention which will be held in Kendallville. Bill is also a staunch friend of Judge Lowry, and is in favor of his third term nomination," says the Kendallville News.

Mr. J. E. Martin, the miner temperance evangelist, has closed his meeting at Knightsville with 500 signers and opened up at Harmony Monday night. The first meeting resulted in 139 signers, Mr. Martin has thus far obtained 1,800 signers to the pledge, most of whom are miners. He has been invited to Brazil by the White Ribbon league and other temperance orders as soon as his meetings at Harmony close.

A merchant of Guthrie lost $4,000 in bonds. He believed he had been robbed and offered $200 reward for their recovery. Private Detectives Shlagel and Higgins, of Louisville, took the case and found that the man suspected was not the thief. By a bold piece of bluff made upon a negro porter about the place, they found that he had thrown out a box in cleaning up. He had picked up the box near the safe and threw it on a manure pile. The detectives hunted in the manure and found the bonds.

Developements in the Goucher assignment show that he failed for at least $150,000. Goucher ran elevators at Denver, Miami, Bennett's, Bunker Hill and Peru, and a general store at Miami. He enjoyed the unlimited confidence of farmers and business men and borrowed, it is said, many thousand dollars without security. It is alleged that he transferred a lot of property and borrowed money in amounts from $500 to $4,000, besides selling over 200,000 bushels of grain, before leaving, as is now known, for Canada.

The Rev. Sam Jones, whatever his other characteristics, has a truly scriptural regard for money. If he is correctly reported, he says: "I have no use for money; I have all the money I want. My needs are supplied bountifully. My family is comfortable and happy, and I can't see what on earth I would do with money if I had it. A couple of hundred dollars in bank is an abundance, and is all I have. As long as a man has plenty for his wife and children and himself he ought to be contented. I don't think the Lord sent me out into the world to make money, but He did send me out into the world to do good. As far as my wife is concerned, my life is insured for $12,000, the interest on which, when I am gone, will be enough to keep her; and as for my children, I don't want to leave them $1. If they are of any account they won't need it; if they are no good, money will be a curse to them."

A HERO!

Gladstone Greeted by a Great Multitude,

Which Assembled to Witness His Departure for the British House of Commons,

Where He is to Unveil His Home Rule Policy to the Parliament for Judgment.

GLADSTONE.

His March to Victory or Defeat on Home Rule.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

London, April 8.—At 3 o'clock the crowd outside the palace gates was enormous. It covered all the space down to Westminister bridge and extended pretty well up Parliament street towards Whitehall. A perfect jam filled Downing street, where Gladstone's official residence is situated. The crowd is patiently awaiting for the premier to make his appearance on his departure for the house of commons.

It was yet early in the morning when all seats on the floor of the house were taken to hear Gladstone's great speech.

THE ASSEMBLY.

The speaker of the house took the chair promptly at 4 o'clock. The chamber was packed to the very extreme limits of its capacity, and every doorway showed the hallways crammed with people, all craning to see and hear.

THE OVATION.

The liberal clubs alone had been counted in the throng outside. Before going to the house Mr. Gladstone took a drive through St. James park. When on his way to parliament the enthusiasm of the people all the way from the door of his house to the commons entrance was spontaneous.

The cheering continued until long after Gladstone entered the parliament buildings, at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Gladstone entered the house and his entrance was followed by loud and prolonged cheers, which were continued for several minutes. Among the liberals and Parnellites the wildest enthusiasm provailed, and it is safe to say no such scene was ever witnessed before in the house of commons.

GLADSTONE SPEAKS.

As soon as the chairman had ceased, Gladstone rose and moved for permission to introduce a bill to amend previous legislation and to make provision for the future government of Ireland. He began his speech: "The time has arrived when both honor and duty requires parliament to come to a decisive resolution. It is our duty to establish harmonious relations between Great Britain and Ireland on a footing of

in which Englishmen, Scotchmen and Irishmen have a like interest."

This sentiment was greeted with prolonged cheers. As soon as quiet was restored Mr. Gladstone entered on a brief review of the general features of the past government for Ireland. He deprecated any further resort to rude remedies or intimidation.

BAD LAWS.

"Since the year 1832," he said, "only two years have passed without coercive legislation for Ireland, and in spite of all this the law continues to be disregarded because it is invested into the eyes of the Irish with a foreign aspect. He believed that the government had found as solution for the Irish problem in the establishment of a

for the conduct of business, both legislative and administrative. (Loud cheers by Parnellites.) The political equality of the three countries must be recognized, therefore there must be an equitable distribution of the imperial funds.

THE BILL.

The intention of the government bill he said, "Is that the parliament at Dublin shall be a dual body. It is to be composed of two orders, each of which shall have the power to veto the acts of the other. First order will include 103 members; second order 206. Twenty-eight of the present Irish peers will continue to sit in the house of lords, and will be granted the option to have life seats in the first Irish order. The office of viceroy for Ireland will not be discontinued. The bill intends that the viceroy shall remain and that the office shall hereafter be non-political. That is the incumbent of the office will not be expected to retire with the downfall of the British ministry. The bill empowers the queen to delegate to the viceroy such other prerogatives as she may choose. The Irish constabulary will remain under the same authority as the present, empowered to deal with laws affecting trade and navigation, coinage, weights, measures and the postal administration. The bill will preserve the fiscal unity of the empire, but the entire proceeds arising from customs and excise duties in Ireland will be held for the benefit of that country. These funds are to be used for the discharge of the Irish obligations, the balance to remain in the Irish exchequer. The bill vests in the Irish legislature the general power of imposing taxes."

THE FORTY-THIRD.

Opening Proceedings of the M. E. Conference at Warsaw.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

Warsaw, Ind., April 8.—The forty-third session of the North Indiana conference convened in the Methodist Episcopal church this morning at 8:30 with Bishop Harris in the chair. The conference was opened with the usual impressive devotional exercises, the bishop reading the scripture lesson and two of the oldes members, Brothers Roberts and Holdstock, leading in prayer. The roll was then called by the secretary of last year, Rev. C. G. Hudson, who was re-elected. L. J. Noftsger was elected statistical secretary. A suitable number of assistant secretaries were appointed. The standing committees were appointed and the usual preliminary minutes' business was accomplished with neatness and dispatch. Bishop Walden, of Cincinnati, came in and was introduced to the conference and invited to a seat beside Bishop Harris. Dr. Hartzell, representing the Freedmen's Aid society, addressed the conference. The Freedman's Aid anniversary was held last evening, and was addressed by Dr. Gay, of Chicago, and Dr. Hartzell. This society is engaged in establishing and sustaining schools of higher grade throughout the south, mostly among colored people. It has established some thirty schools and colleges and has expended a million and a half dollars, and has assisted the education of thousands of preachers, teachers and physicians among the colored people.

Rev. Charles Martindale was readmitted on his certificate of location. On motion the general educational collection for this year and next were appropriated to Fort Wayne college. The educational anniversary will be held Saturday evening and will be addressed by Dr. Terry, of Garrett, Dr. Yocum and others. The annual missionary sermon was preached this afternoon by W. H. Daniel, of Logansport, and the anniversary will be held this evening.

Geronimos, wife and daughter, are among the prisoners.

From Superintendent to Conductor.

The Defiance accommodation, run on the Wabash railroad between that place and Toledo, recently in charge of Conductor A. M. Prince, has been assigned to George Dimmick during the remainder of Conductor Carvers absence. Mr. Dimmick hails from Marshal, Texas, at which place he was division superintendent on the Texas and Pacific railway, his territory consisting of two divisions and comprised 497 miles of road. He left there by his own request, preferring to run a train in the north rather than be a superintendent in the south. This change will probably place Mr. Prince back on the accommodation run between Andrews and Tilton, a position he held prior to doing extra passenger work.

OVER THE BANK.

A Train is Wrecked and Many Lives Lost.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

Greenfield, Mass., April 8.—A terrible disaster occurred on the Fitchburg railroad last night, midway between Bardwell's ferry and West Deerfield station, the east bound passenger train due at Greenfield at 6:05 p. m. going over an embankment 200 feet high. Six bodies have already been taken out of the ruins and it is not known how many others were killed. The train was the eastern express and consisted of a baggage car, smoker, sleeping car, mail car and two ordinary passenger cars. The train was in charge of Conductor Foster, with Herbert Littlejohn as engineer. The point where the accident occurred is the most dangerous on the road. The train runs on the edge of an embankment 200 feet above the Deerfield river. The bank is steep and covered with huge boulders and masses of rock. When the train arrived at this point, the track commenced to settle under it for a distance covering its entire length, the coaches broke from the trucks and rolled over and over down the steep banks. The engine broke from the tender, tearing up the track twenty feet below, and rolled down to the edge of Deerfield river, on the edge of which the cars were thrown. As soon as they struck they caught fire from the stoves. The sleeping car was an entire wreck. It was occupied by several passengers, not one of whom at this hour is known to have escaped injury. One man, whose name is unknown, is imprisoned in the wreck of the sleeper, where he was burned alive. One little girl was picked up dead. As soon as the news reached Greenfield a special train was made up and sent to the scene of the disaster, having on board several physicians, section men and a few citizens. On arriving at the scene of the wreck a horrible sight was witnessed. Darkness had settled over the spot. Far down on the river bank could be seen the smouldering embers of the holocaust. It was impossible to tell who was hurt or who was killed. Stout-hearted trackmen were lowered cautiously down the treacherous height and the work of rescue began.

Some of the injured and dead were taken to Shelburne Falls, and some of the wounded to Greenfield.

Being interviewed by wire last night, at Shelburne Falls, Conductor Foster said: "I am unable to state how many were on the train. Only three passengers have thus far been found who escaped injury, and they set the number of passengers all the way from twenty-five to 100."

At midnight it was reported that four more dead bodies were removed from the wreck, and it was believed that others had been swept down the river. Of the four bodies found one was recognized as that of Brakeman Spicer. It is impossible to give a complete list of the killed and wounded at present.

THE LATEST.

Meritt Ely, superintendent of the National Express company, died this morning. Engineer Littlejohn cannot live till night. Two bodies were brought here this morning. One was identified as E. E. Hayden, the other as J. E. Gould, of Obington, Conn. C. P. Bell, of Nashville, says there were several persons in the water below him, but he saw none of them get ashore and he believes they were drowned. John Crowley, of North Adams, was on the train and is wildly insane.

A LEVEL-HEADED NEWSDEALER.

Newsdealers are as a class popularly supposed to know a good thing when they see it, and are ever on the lookout for that which will interest and please the public. In a humble way Edison was once a newsdealer, having sold papers on railroads. Among newsdealers who have a keen eye to business and to everything that can be of benefit is Mr. G. W. Dove, of Vincennes, Ind., whose place of business is at No. 114 Second street. Mr. Dove was recently afflicted with rheumatism, but quickly cured himself by using Athlophoros. This is what he says about it:

"Athlophoros is a good medicine and it did for me all that I could ask. At the time when I began using it I was sadly afflicted with rheumatism. I was in a helpless state and suffered untold pain, not being able to get out of bed or to be moved without enduring the greatest agony. I had read some time before of the wonderful cures of people effected by Athlophoros, and at the time tried to buy it at the drug stores, but could not find any. As I was determined to try it I sent to the company for some."

"Did it act quickly upon you?"

"I felt the effects almost immediately. After I had taken a few doses the pain subsided. The medicine seemed to go directly where the pain was."

"Have you had any return of the pain?"

"I have not suffered any to speak of since. I used only three bottles and consider it the best medicine for rheumatism that I know of. I recommended it to a gentleman in St. Louis who had his mother use some and was very much pleased with the result. I have recommended it to different persons, and in every instance where it was used it gave entire satisfaction."

J. A. Wilson, the well-known photographer, 6 and 8 Main St., New Albany, tells an equally interesting story of how Athlophoros cured him of rheumatism:

"I only used one bottle," he says. "The rheumatism was in my arms and I had sharp, shooting pains. I was suffering and complaining a great deal, when a friend coming into my gallery one morning asked me what the trouble was. I said it was rheumatism. Said my friend: 'I was reading of a medicine that is for the cure of rheumatism and neuralgia. It struck me forcibly, as it did not claim to cure every complaint that flesh is heir to.' When I asked him what it was he said the name was Athlophoros. I bought a bottle on the strength of what he said. That was all I needed. I used the one bottle over six months ago and have not had a pain or an ache from rheumatism since."

From Greencastle, Ind., D. L. Southard has this to say of what Athlophoros did for him:

"When Bishop Bowman brought me a bottle of Athlophoros I was suffering greatly from rheumatism and could scarcely move. I began taking the medicine on Thursday morning. At 9 P. M. I went to sleep and slept until 6 o'clock Friday morning, when I got up and said to my wife: 'Dear, look here, I am well.' At the first I was so much better that I stopped using the medicine and the rheumatism came back. The second attack was not stopped so easily, but still in double the time the Athlophoros removed the pain. The medicine had no unpleasant effect, but seemed to quiet, soothe and give relief."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

IN the Buffalo Express a writer remembers George M. Pullman, the palace car millionaire, as he lived at Albion in his young manhood. ALEXANDER G. DRAKE, a colored carpenter of Louisville, is coming into prominence as a temperance revivalist. He is 59 years old, an ex-slave, and is said to be doing good. His plan of work is to secure signers to a pledge which binds them for three months, a year, or for life, as they may elect. The pledge is unique, and reads: "I do sincerely hope that if I drink beer or whisky until (date named here), without being considered sick, that bad luck may be mine the remainder of my life, so help me God."

SEVEN Philadelphia newsboys engaged in a pie-eating match for the amusement of Apollo Senate, Knights of Sparta. The pies were large, thick, very juicy, and made of cherries. The boy who, without the aid of knife, fork, or finger, first finished his pie was to have a dollar. Every boy was paid fifty cents in addition. The pies were on a narrow table, and after each boy's hands had been tied behind him, time was called. In five minutes Jimmy Dougherty had eaten every crumb, licked the plate clean, and looked like a painted devil in a pantomime. Two of the boys were down on their knees, having dropped their pies on the floor.

IF there ever was a woman who deserved a pension from the State of Massachusetts, writes a Boston correspondent, it is Mrs. Mary Walker, who works in the office of the State printers, Wright & Potter, as a proof-reader. She has been employed twenty years as a proof-reader for this firm, and many as are the blue-books of acts and resolves that cheery Clerk Gifford has intoned in his twenty-eight years of service, Mrs. Walker's record has a much wider extent. She does not content herself with the exciting chronicles of the House and Senate journals, calendars and documents. She peruses annually thirteen sets of "Pub. Docs.," from the Governor's message down to the reports of the superintendents of the different lunatic asylums.

LAST week Senator Harrison's law partner went among the republican employes in the government building at Indianapolis and collected money with which to defeat the democratic township ticket there last Monday. Senator Harrison can startle the senate with this information, if his head can encompass the contemptible nature of the business from a republican standpoint.

HON. DAN MCDONALD, editor of the Plymouth Democrat, denies that he is a candidate for auditor of state or any other office, as he says, in the gift of the "steel-ribbed" and "rock-rooted" democracy of Indiana or elsewhere. Mr. McDonald says there was a time when he considered his candidacy equivalent to the perpetuity of the republic, and adds: "After the convention adjourned I left the city of concentric circles with a heavy heart, supposing, on account of my defeat, the country would be ruined, and the democratic party, which had 'borne the whips and scorns of time, the law's delay and the insolence of office,' would naturally drift into 'innocuous desuetude' and be sent to the demnition bow-wows! I have been much surprised in watching the current of events to observe that my defeat created no perceptible shock, and that everything has moved along as smoothly as if I had never had an existence."

PROF. GRINNON, of Austin, Texas, has invented a machine for condensing clouds of vapor and causing them to fall to the earth in the form of rain. A condensing compound is enclosed in a brass case or shell, with a conical point, eighteen inches in length, and an explosive substance operated by a time fuse regulates the moment of discharge. This projectile is thrown into the clouds by means of a machine mounted on wheels and resembling a light field gun. It is fixed on a pivot in such a way that it can be pointed in any direction by means of a lever. This machine is said to be a wonderful success, and its inventor claims to be able, with its aid, to cause rain to fall at any moment. Oceans of water are carried over Texas in the form of nimbus clouds during the summer months, but owing to the regularity and even temperature of the wind the clouds are carried inland, to be condensed by the more varied winds of Arkansas and Indian territory. By the use of this machine it is expect to avert the damaging drougths so common in Texas.

THEATRICAL MANAGERS.

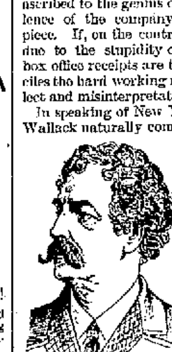

What They Are Like In And Out Of Their Profession.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, March 29.—There is no class of men who are more talked about and who are less known, who work harder for the public and who receive less credit for their efforts, than theatrical managers. There are a few managers who are familiar to the eye of the public. Lester Wallack, Tony Pastor and possibly one or two more are well known figures on the street. But it is safe to say that not one out of a hundred people who are made to laugh at the refined humor of his plays, who marvel at his excellently trained company, or who admire his tastefully decorated theatre, recognize Mr. Augustin Daly in the spare, thoughtful-looking man who glides through the luxurious foyer like a well-bred undertaker, clad in sombre raiment, and a hat of the style which was worn in bygone ages crowning his rather long hair. Ten people will turn on Broadway to look at Harry Dixey to one who will recognize his handsome manager, Mr. E. E. Rice.

Yet if money is to be raised for some great public enterprise or charity the managers are the first ones applied to, and they never are slow in responding. If a play is put on the boards which proves a great hit the success is ascribed to the genius of the star, the excellence of the company or the worth of the piece. If, on the contrary, it is a failure it is due to the stupidity of the manager. The box office receipts are the salve which reconciles the hard working manager to public neglect and misinterpretation.

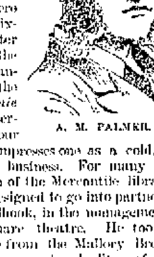

In speaking of New York managers, Lester Wallack naturally comes first in one's mind, both on account of seniority and popularity, though, in truth, Mr. Wallack is much better as an actor than as a manager. He has been on the New York boards since 1847, when, at the age of 28—for he was born on Jan. 1, 1819—he made his first appearance as Sir Charles Coldstream. He at once became the popular idol, and though now 67 years old the girls still fall in love with his handsome face and charming manner of playing the young man. He began his managerial career in 1852, in Wallack's old theatre, on Broadway, near Broome street. Nine years later he opened the theatre now the Star, on the corner of Thirteenth street and Broadway, and in 1882 the present house, on the corner of Broadway and Thirtieth street, was completed. Mr. Wallack is still a handsome man; courteous in manner, quick in perception and generous in impulse. He has done much to elevate the tone of the stage from an artistic standpoint, and his theatre is one of the most fashionable in New York. His son, Arthur, now takes much of the burden of management off his father's shoulders, and is an active and popular young man, possessed of much of his father's magnetic charm of manner. Mr. Wallack has collected about him a company of good actors, yet no plays are quite so popular as those in which Mr. Wallack himself appears.

LESTER WALLACK.

Mr. Augustin Daly does not appear on his own stage, but he infuses an equally distinct personality into his theatre by writing his own plays; or, to be more accurate, he writes the most successful ones. Mr. Daly has an amiable weakness in the direction of old English comedies and presents one or more during each season, and while it is generally admitted that no company can produce the old comedies more acceptably, it does not reconcile audiences which are accustomed to Mr. Daly's own delicate humor to the more labored wit of the early English dramatists. Most of Mr. Daly's later work has been "adapted from the German" and bears the same resemblance to the original as a piece of delicate lace does to the spool of thread from which it is made. The material may be German, but the artistic touches, the charming humor, the delicately worked-out situations are Mr. Daly's.

When Mr. Daly first became known as a writer of clever stories for The Sunday Courier along in 1858, or thereabouts, he was called John Augustin Daly by his friends, but the John was dropped when he became a manager about twenty years ago. Mr. Daly is slender, intellectual looking, nervous in manner, quick in judgment and strong in his likes and dislikes. He lacks the magnetism which makes a popular man, yet every one respects him and hundreds who do not know his face are grateful for the delightful plays he has produced, and the perfect company he has formed. Mr. Daly is a martinet in stage matters, and is said to be very severe at rehearsals, though this is but a rumor, for but few outsiders have been allowed to witness a rehearsal in his theatre, and he keeps an immense Saint Bernard dog, Pique by name, at the stage door, who grows fat and lazy from a diet of would-be stage door mashers.

Mr. A. M. Palmer, the present manager of the Madison Square theatre, is a small man with a pale face, gray hair and gray side whiskers. Mr. Palmer is the son of a New England clergyman, and there is a curious mixture of the minister and the man of the world in his manners. He lacks the genial bonhomie which characterizes many of our managers, and impresses one as a cold, calculating man of business. For many years he was librarian of the Mercantile library, a post which he resigned to go into partnership with Sheridan Shook, in the management of the Union Square theatre. He took the Madison Square from the Mallory Brothers (one of them a reverend and editor of a religious weekly, by the way) and has made it a pecuniary success.

A. M. PALMER.

He has lately come prominently before the public through an interview, in which he ascribes the very much talked of and very little existing immorality of the stage to the growth of burlesque. Considering the extremely Frenchy tone of many of the plays which have been brought out by Mr. Palmer, this is rather funny. The question seems to be as to which has the most demoralizing influence, a pretty woman, in scant display, who does nothing immodest on the stage, or the presentation of social villainy in a dress suit. The question is still agitating the public mind.

Mr. Edward E. Rice is the champion of burlesque and the most successful manager in that field. Mr. Rice used to be a clerk in a Boston music store. He composes music, manages two or three companies and has put more pretty girls on the stage than any other manager in the country. Mr. Rice is essentially a popular man, genial, ready-witted and generous. He is a charming companion and a valuable friend. He has seen much of the unpleasant side of life, but has been jolly and persevering through it all. When he was in hard luck he was as cheerful in borrowing as he is now in lending. A story characteristic both of Mr. Rice and Mr. Stetson, is told. Rice one day sent a messenger down to Stetson, post haste, to borrow $2,500. "Hand me my check book, quick," exclaimed Stetson as he read the note.

"But," urged his bookkeeper, "you are not in such a hurry to lend to Rice. He has nothing to pay with."

"Hand me that check book," commanded Stetson. "If he comes down here he'll make it $5,000."

Mr. Rice is assisted in his managerial ventures by his brother Charles, a tall, soldierly looking man, quiet, energetic and capable.

Mr. Rudolph Aronson rejoices in being considered the handsomest as well as the youngest manager in the city. To him and his brother Edward the New York public is grateful for having conceived and erected the most beautiful place of amusement in the city—the Casino. Mr. Aronson is slender, graceful, with a pale, refined face, a handsome dark mustache, and large, soft brown eyes. He is a composer of considerable merit, as well as a clever manager, and much of his dance music is very popular. Mr. Aronson's Casino scheme, with its Moorish arches, its fairy-like roof garden and its entertainment of well sung and magnificently staged comic opera, was long regarded as a chimera by his brother managers, but when the Casino began to materialize its success was assured. James D. Fish, of Marine bank fame, Ferdinand Ward and Gen. Grant were among the stockholders who furnished money for the enterprise. But it is to Mr. Aronson's pluck, energy and refined taste that the Casino is due.

RUDOLPH ARONSON.

One of the most curious compounds in the New York managerial museum is Bartley Campbell. He was a reporter on the old New York Star in those days when a dollar was regarded as a fabulous fortune by a Star man. Then he wheeled bricks in a Pittsburg brick yard and reported on a Pittsburg paper, and all the time he wrote plays. Some people claim that he wrote plays while he was asleep, and it is charitable to suppose that some of his earlier efforts were produced under those conditions. About seven years ago he wrote "My Partner," and then his success began. He took out all his old plays, turned them over and produced them again. He is his own manager, and has made a fortune after years of toil and waiting, and few will deny that he deserves it. To be sure he sometimes fails to draw a sufficiently broad distinction between himself and Shakespeare, but conceit is pardonable in a successful man. The same exuberant imagination which he used to display in his concoction of newspaper reports enters into the composition of his plays.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL.

He has not yet worked in the pig story which made him famous in Pittsburg journalism, but its dramatization is only a question of time. He came into The Pittsburg Dispatch office one morning with a very sensational story of how a pig had devoured a new born infant in a squatter's cabin in Pittsburg's Irishtown. It was published and the next day a delegation from Irishtown, armed with baseball bats, clubs, slung-shots and similar bric-a-brac, visited The Dispatch office to remonstrate with the editor. Campbell was sent to verify his story. After some time he returned breathless, but triumphant, waving about a ream of closely-written "copy." "It's all right," he exclaimed, "only it was twins."

Campbell is a tall, loose-jointed man with a hesitating manner and clothes which never by any chance fit him. He is generous in his own peculiar way and no appeal from one who has known him in the days of his adversity goes unheeded.

A large man, with a queer eye, a genial manner and a big heart is John Stetson, of the Fifth Avenue theatre. He began life as a devil in a printing office and a professional athlete, and has risen to his present position by hard work and good sense. He is a familiar figure in the Brunswick café, where he delights to stand with a congenial crowd and tell stories and gossip until all hours in the morning. It is here that Mr. Stetson gets off some of the brightest bon mots, which go the rounds of the clubs the next day as Stetson's latest, and it is here that he occasionally makes the mistakes which have gained him the reputation of being the managerial Mrs. Malaprop. Most of the stories are made up and hung on to Stetson because everybody knows his good nature, but occasionally he makes a comical blunder.

When Joe Brooks, the eminent Hebrew theatrical speculator, was suing Charlie Byrne for libel, Stetson, Ned Gilmore and a lot more were subpœnaed to appear in court at 10 o'clock in the morning. They concluded it would be no use to go to bed if they had to get up so early, and they prepared to sit it out. About 4 o'clock they began to get cross and sleepy, and wish Byrne and Brooks and the suit in various warm places. "John," said one of the party to Stetson, "you are a mutual friend. Why don't you smooth out this matter between Charlie and Brooks?"

"Oh! I've tried, but its no use," said Stetson. "There's too much vermin in both of 'em."

It took the boys some time to find out that he meant venom. But Mr. Stetson is a rich man, a successful man, a shrewd business man, universally popular and respected, and he can afford to laugh at such jokes.

One of the most misunderstood men in New York is John Duff, of the Standard theatre. Heavily built and determined looking, with an expression of solemnity on his face and a deep rooted detestation for dead heads in his heart, it must be admitted that he is not a man that a timid person would care to "brace for passes." Yet, after all, the severity is only a surface indication. If a dead head can really do anything in return for his seats no man is more generous than John Duff; he has an independent man's dislike of being swindled, that is all. When once he makes a friendship it lasts. People often mistake his bluff manner for rudeness, but in reality he is one of the kindest of men. There is no hypocrisy about John Duff; if he don't like a man he says so, and if he does like him his preference is not exhibited by empty compliments. He is an able manager, having been largely instrumental in building up the present prosperity of Daly's. He now stands behind his son, James C. Duff, at the Standard, and advises and suggests much to the profit of the young man, who is a clever, pains-taking, quiet young fellow, with just a touch of his father's manner, which will probably develop as he grows older. ALLAN FORMAN.

A SHOP GIRLS ROMANCE.

One of the Incidents Which Lead on to Tragedies.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April 5.—One learns to read below the surface of life here, if one learns anything. Little romances, which often grow into big ruins, are to be seen here any day, and almost every hour. Indeed, one can't help but see them, they are so unmistakably "under one's nose." A few weeks ago I was walking with a friend on a much thronged street just as the great shops closed. An army of salesmen, saleswomen, "bundlers," cash girls and boys and other helpers, poured out of the great doors of two or three large houses and hurried off toward their homes.

Among the pedestrians that met this moving throng was a dashing young swell, who singled out a young girl walking alone, and approaching her in the most deferential manner and the heartiest delight, greeted her with the cordiality of a warm friend. The little thing colored with pleasure and pride, and her agreeable face fairly shone with delight as the dashing youth turned and walked by her side.

"Do you see that?" said my friend. "That dude is not of that girl's sphere in life. He has waited for her and is dazzling her humble little head with his attentions and flattery."

He had stated the case correctly. The girl was a mere child. Her skirts were still somewhat above her shoe-tops, and were very thin and well-worn, though her entire costume, poor as it was, carried an atmosphere of style that many a Fifth avenue belle is not born to. Her shoulders were protected by a jaunty but thin little cape made from a "last winter's cloak," and her neat shoes, though shining with liquid blacking, were nearer the end than the beginning of their career. He was clad in warm, rich clothing. She and the young man might well have been used as models for a picture of Industrious Poverty and Idle Opulence walking arm in arm.

How pleased she was! Her eyes sparkled as she proudly stepped along and her tongue was loosened as by magic. She chattered with pleasure, smiled at every word her companion uttered, literally walked on air. Even the tiny lunch basket that swung lightly on her arm seemed to partake of her pleasure, and jostled itself back and forth in ecstacy. After a day of toil in the shop she had suddenly entered paradise. Her self-esteem and vanity, her heart, perhaps, were all touched by the lover-like deference of the elegant creature by her side.

They walked on just ahead of us across the city to Broadway, turned up that great thoroughfare and walked several squares. Then the young man stopped, excused himself on the plea of an urgent engagement, yet lingered, and made the sweet pain of parting as long as possible. At last, with many a regretful word and meaning glance, he left her and walked down Broadway, and she tripped lightly away, poor, foolish thing, so happy that the world held in that moment nothing disagreeable.

"That's the beginning," said my wise friend, looking after her with a sigh. "The end for her, perhaps, will be a hospital, or the river, or long, long days of doom and degradation. Yet nothing can be done to save her. 'Tis cruel, too, that what appears so comforting and attractive to her should be the means of destroying her. It is natural for her to be pleased with the good-looking scamp's attentions. She can't know that he is a scamp. Doubtless he seems a god to her; the very man of whom she has read in the story books, and of whom she has dreamed in her rosy day dreams. She loves refinement, good manners and beauty, and finds them not in the men with whom she is daily thrown in her humble station.

"This young swell has bought something from her in the store, most likely, and being well up in reading the signs of the affections has seen that he has made an impression on the confiding, unsophisticated little thing, and is following it up. He met her purposely this evening, of course. He is flattered, too, by the extravagant admiration she gives him. He may have nothing but good will in his heart for her. Who knows? If it were not for the tongues of what is known as 'society,' perhaps this little romance would not turn out a tragedy. But it will! it will! There is a heartbreak in it for the girl, poor thing. And for the youth a loss of something he would be wise to keep, whether he will be conscious of the loss or not."

My friend continued: "A girl like that has no chance in life, anyway. She has human feelings—the same longings and loves are common to all humanity—and if her heart goes wherever her tastes do, ten to one it goes to its own undoing. The hard worked people of the city have no society. They toil all day and are too scattered and too fatigued to have any pleasure together in the evening—yes, and too poor. Every place of entertainment costs. Even a trip to the home of a friend costs street car fare, and that is an item to those whose labor brings them in merely enough to keep themselves sheltered, fed and clothed."

I have seen these ill-matched lovers several times since on the street together at the same hour. The acquaintance has progressed rapidly. The youth has taken on an air of ownership toward the girl, and she seems very happy to be owned by such a dazzling creature. Of course, he never visits her at her home, which is some respectable but over-crowded tenement house, or some cheap boarding house, with the odor of fish and onions permanently in the dingy little parlor and gloomy hall. No, indeed, she couldn't invite him there, for many reasons. He wouldn't go if she did. It wouldn't be to his taste. No, he will continue to meet her as she goes from work until he has gained her confidence, and then he will suggest other meetings, and will continue to entertain her in ways that appear princely to her, and the end thereof will be misery. MAX ELTON.

I sold a good many bottles of your medicine, Athlophoros, last fall. Parties that used it recommended it to others, and as far as I can see it has given satisfactory results to every one who used it for rheumatism and neuralgia. H. Hinricks, Manitowac, Wis.

Fruit House Bulletin

Great Reduction in Prices for 1886.

Goods are so low now that it can hardly be expected that there will be any further decline, so that those laying in full supplies will not likely be disappointed.

Coffee Down 2c, Tea Down 10c, Sugars Down 1-2c, Syrups Down 10c, Turkish Prunes Down 1c.

Best Rio Coffee down to 10c a pound; good Rio coffee down to 8c a pound; best Roasted Rio down to 12½c a pound; Government Java, 20c.; Roasted Java 25c.

TEAS Reduced in Proportion.

It is no more a luxury to buy Teas. When they were $1 and $2 per pound then of course the consumption of them was small, but now the price is so low that a good Tea can be bought at 20c per pound then they come within the reach of all.

We are enabled to sell so low simply in consequence of our immense trade. At times we sell two and three chests daily, and buying direct of the importers and selling direct to the consumers, enables us to save our customers the profits of the jobber, speculator and wholesale merchant which is at least 10 to 20 per pound.

Young Hyson, good, 20c; choice, 30c; best 50c; Gunpowder, good, 30c; choice, 40; best 50c; Oolong or Black Tea 20c; choice, 30c; best 50c; Japan Tea, uncolored, 35c; choice, 40; best 50c; English Breakfast, good, 20c; best 50c per pound.

SUGARS---White and Yellow, Down 1-2c.

Cut Loaf Sugar, 7½c per pound; Powdered Sugar, 7½c; Granulated, 7; Coffee A, 6½; Coffee C White, 6c; choice New Orleans Yellow, 5c.

Syrups Reduced 10c a Gal.

Best Golden Drip, 40c per gallon; best Sorghum, 40c per gallon; best New Orleans, Molasses, 30c.

SMOKED MEATS AND PICKLED PORKS.

Best sugar cured hams, 10c per pound; Sugar cured shoulders, 6c per pound; Pickeled pork 6c per pound; Breakfast bacon, best, 9c per pound.

SALT AND SMOKED FISH.

White Fish, ½ bbl, $6; White Fish in kitts, $1; Family White Fish, kitts, 60c; Family White Fish, ½ bbl, $1.25; Mackeral in kitts, 60c; good, $1; best, $1.60; Cut Fish, kitts, $1; Cut Fish, ½ bbl., $6; ¼ bbl., $3.

Fish Oil, Lard Oil, Neats Foot Oil, Machine Oils and Head Light

Neats Foot Oil, 80c gallon; Fish Oil, 70c gallon; Headlight oil, 12c gallon; machine Oil dark, 20c gallon; Golden machine oil, 30c gallon.

WINES AND LIQUORS

Old 76 Whisky for medical use, $2.50 per gallon; two-year old, $1.75; one-year old, $1.40; good new whisky, $1.00 and $1 per gallon; California wine, Muscatel and Angelica, 40c bottle; Port Wine per gallon, $1.25; gallon Catawba wine, $1; gallon Old Tom Gin, 40c; bottle Canada malt, 30c.

Candies Down---Stick and Mixed Reduced 2c per Pound.

Pure Stick Candy, 10c. per pound; French Mixed Candy, down to 10c; Bon Bons, 20c; Gum Drops, 10c; Imperials and Chocolate down to 15c per pound.

The Greatest Reduction of all is on Turkish Pruens.

Who ever heard of them selling at 4c per pound. The crop is so large that they don't pay freight and duty to ship to New York. The very best new fruit 4c per pound; new Valencia Raisins, 10c. a pound; Seedless Sultana Raisins, 12½c; best Leghorn Citron, 30c; new dried apples, 4c per pound; new dried peaches, 6c. per pound.

THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1886.

THE CITY.

This is the fifth week in lent.

Duck shooting will be illegal after the 15th.

John G. Lehr is very sick with the rheumatism.

H. V. Root, of this city, was at Andrews last Tuesday.

Allen county will elect her congressional delegates on May 1.

Next Sunday is Passion Sunday. Easter comes on the 25th.

Thomas Morton has sold his store at Huntertown, to James Noonan.

Elmer M. Hobbs and Clara L. Crall were licensed to marry early this morning.

D. Kearns, a brakeman on the Pittsburg road, had a finger pinched off yesterday.

Orrin Perry will be clerk to Justice of the Peace Tom Hunt, of Washington township.

The retail druggists' society will meet on Friday evening to elect officers for the ensuing year.

John Mack, formerly with Jacob Walter, left for Chicago this afternoon, where he will remain.

H. D. Armstrong, of Jackson, Michigan passenger agent of the Wabash route, is in the city to-day.

Isabella Hurling and John Thumler, Hugh McFadden and Alice Fisher were yesterday licensed to marry.

Hon. Hugh Dougherty and family, of Bluffton, were in the city yesterday en route to Kansas to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Singmaster, of 177 Jackson street, will quietly celebrate their twelfth wedding anniversary this evening.

John E. Robbins, John S. Cook and John McCann have been duly qualified as constables by filing their bonds in the sum of $1,000 each.

General T. W. Bennett intended to go to the soldiers' reunion at Warsaw yesterday, but on finding he could not make railroad connections was forced to stay at home.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana side track at Indian Fields, up north, has been completed and the erection of a station house at that point will be begun at an early date.

Sarah Jane Sommers died this morning at her home, No. 83 Holman street, from hemorrhage of the abdomen. She was forty years of age and will be buried Saturday morning.

T. L. Cross, the fraudulent pension man whom Paul Pettijohn assaulted at the jail yesterday, will have a hearing before Commissioner Harper to-morrow, if District Attorney Lamb arrives.

Sheriff Nelson says that Paul Pettijohn, the crazy man, did not bite the ear of a fellow prisoner, neither did he nip a portion of the auricular appendage. This spoils a sensation, but it can't be helped.

Deputy United States Marshal Wilkinson was highly complimented by the Cleveland authorities for capturing DeVille, the money order thief. DeVille's confession saved a postmaster from dismissal and disgrace.

A childrens' masquerade party was elegantly entertained Monday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Willis D. Maier. The costumes were novel, rich and beautiful, the entire affair being pronounced the success of the season.

It has been determined by the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad company to erect a building, 150 by 180 feet ground surface, of iron, stone, brick and cement, and absolutely fire proof, to replace the car works burned last winter at Grand Rapids.

Colonel Hargitt, once a congressman from the south and a scholarly fellow, is working on the Huntington Democrat. Colonel Hargitt is a journeyman printer and every one in the fraternity knows him. His proclivity is to paint the town in its brightest color.

"This weather," said an old timer this morning, "beats my recollection for April. Instead of nice warm and pleasant days, with frequent showers, we are greeted with constant cold winds from the north and numerous snowy squalls. I can't understand the thing at all."

Rev. S. A. Northrop was the recipient of the warmest congratulations at the Baptist church last night. He has many substantial tokens of the thirty-sixth anniversary of his birth, a unique one being a purse of $36—$1 for each year of his existance. THE SENTINEL hopes he will live to see another thirty-six years go around.

Mr. William Gallison, superintendent of bridges and buildings on the southern division of the Grand Rapids and Indiana, was asked by a SENTINEL reporter when he was going to begin work on the hotel which the railroad company is to build at Long Lake. "Pretty soon now, I think. Would probably have been at work on it now if a change in the plans had not caused a delay."

Book beer is in the market and the festive lager flows freely.

Minnie Maddern will be at the Temple, April 14, "In Spite of All."

Harmony lodge I. O. O. F. give a public reception to its members this evening.

Frank Weldon, a clerk in Master Mechanic Casenave's office, is on the sick list.

Wallace W. Sheldon has resigned his position as prescriptionist with T. F. Thieme.

"Zo Zo, the Magic Queen," will be at the Temple Friday and Saturday, April 16 and 17.

Ke-ki-on-ga Council No. 98, of the national union, will hold their semi-monthly meeting to-night.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Howe, of Lima, Ind., were in the city to-day en route to California.

Ex-Conductor James Cogan, of the Pittsburg and Fort Wayne road, is dead. He resided in Chicago.

D. Broeking has been given a permit to build an addition to his frame house on lots 13 and 14, Wall's addition, to cost $50.

The colored jubilee singers give a concert at the temperance tabernacle, on Harrison street to-night. The people are celebrated.

Mr. Mason Long is in the city. Next Monday he will start on his summer evangelical tour, opening first at Burlington, Iowa.

Only ten days remain in which to pay taxes without penalty. But two-fifths of the city taxes have been paid. Positively no extension of time will be given.

Belle Boyde, the "Rebel Spy," lectured on newspaper reporters at the Wabash ticket office yesterday. She was especially hard on the Fort Wayne pencil pushers.

The indications for the lower lake region, as reported by the weather bureau at Washington to THE SENTINEL, are as follows: Fair weather, stationary, followed by slowly rising temperature.

"A Night Off" did not draw an exceedingly big house at the Temple last night. The play is pleasing enough for Lent and the people are rather good. Most of them were formerly with the 7-20 8 party.

Judge Hench gave these decisions yesterday: Bonewitz vs. Bonewitz and Hartman, judgment of dismissal; Northan vs. Northan, divorce, evidence heard in part; John Rulo vs. Cartwright, judgment for plaintiff for $182.40.

James B. Kenner, of Huntington, grand master of the I. O. O. F., of the state of Indiana, will be here to night to attend the opening of the new hall of Harmony lodge. He will deliver an address, as will also Enoch Cox, of this city, past grand master.

Suit has been entered by the Brown Chemical company of Baltimore, Md., against Meyer Bros., & Co., of St. Louis, for imitating the Brown's Iron Bitters. The Meyer Bros., & Co.'s firm sell the preparation as Brown's Iron Tonic, hence the prosecution.

H. M. Jones, the ball player who is running an engine on the Grand Rapids and Indiana road will not take any engagement this season on account of the opposition of his wife. Mr. Jones played with the first Fort Wayne nine and married a Fort Wayne girl, Miss Fordney.

The Romey-Archer fight continues to be a source of revenue to the squires. Yesterday Justice France fined R. L. Romey $10.25 for assault on Charley Archer. Now Romey filed an affidavit in Ryan's court, charging Archer with provoke on Charley Thurman. Justice Ryan has this case.

"Bishop Knickerbacher and Rev. W. N. Webbe made a very pleasant visit here last week. On Friday evening there was a class of nine presented for confirmation by Rev. Spaulding. The bishop will return again in June, at which time there will be another class prepared for confirmation," says a Lima, Ind., correspondent.

"John L. Gallup has traded his livery barn in this city to A. T. Ross for stock in the Kendallville Refrigerator company. John started out last Monday to superintend the erection of a large refrigerator at Fort Wayne and expects soon to take the road in the interest of said firm. He will make the business hum, and we wish him success," says the Kendallville News.

The annual conference of the Evangelical church, held at Dayton last week made the following appointments for the Fort Wayne district: D. S. Oaks, presiding elder; Fort Wayne, Jacob Miller; Kendallville, A. Geist; Waterloo, J. B. Fisher; Edgerton, W. H. Brightmyer; Hicksville, S. B. King; Defiance, P. A. Orth; Van Wert, S. S. Albert; St. Mary's, F. Ronsch; Newville, J. Hoffman; Huntington, J. Fisher; Celina, H. Arlen; Webster, G. B. Holdeman.

Mrs. George Trenam has accepted a position with H. W. Matson the architect.

John Agard, arrested for drunkenness last night, was let off by the mayor this morning.

Judge Hench to-day dismissed the case of the Seiberling Machine Company vs. Anton Sorg.

The Peru Journal has changed hands, the new editor and proprietor being Richard Kilgore.

Mr. Walter Wells has accepted a position as book keeper for the Beckford furniture company.

There will be an interesting institute at school house No. 4, Wayne township, Saturday afternoon.

Mike Nelligan has resigned his place in the Wabash shop to accept a position in the Pittsburg machine shop.

H. G. Wagner writes from California that he will not return before May 1. Mrs. Wagner's health is improving.

Miss Mattie McDonald has returned to her home in Chicago, after a two month's visit to her friend, Miss Anna Farnen.

Capt. Scott Swan is a whole army, out among the soldiers. He is always pleasant and jolly and has hosts of friends everywhere.

A fellow named Boner struck and cut Marshal Johnson, of Monroeville, with brass knuckles last Monday and there is war in that neighborhood.

Mr. Barney O'Connor has returned from Dallas, Texas, where he and his brother are interested in a big ranche, a bank and the Dallas Gas works.

S. S. Ford, Richmond, Ind., H. H. Conner, J. W. Blakeslee, Chicago, H. French, Cincinnati, George K. Pontius, Columbia City, are the guests of the Robinson house.

Miss Mattie Probasco has tendered her resignation as teacher in one of the Wayne township schools, to take effect as soon as Mr. Gaffney names her successor. Miss Probasco is shortly to wed a wealthy Chicago gentleman.

H. T. Gage, T. V. Leach, A. S. Ulitz, Chicago, J. H. Neal, Logansport, Wm. J. Fieber, E. R. Davidson, Detroit, H. J. Heywood, Richmond, Ind., R. B. Hoover, Springfield, Ill., and C. Gould, Cleveland, are among the guests at the Rich hotel.

"Mrs. J. J. Studer, of Fort Wayne, the lady with whom Miss Minnie Boon boarded, accompanied the remains and Mrs. Boon to their home last Saturday, and has since remained, doing all in her power to comfort the stricken family and to care for Mrs. Boon, to whom the severe and unexpected shock came near proving fatal," says the Angola Herald.

The first annual re-union of the Sultana survivors will be held at Toledo, April 27. All survivors of the Sultana disaster are requested to be present. The day meetings will be held in the G. A. R. hall, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. and 2 p. m. and the evening meeting in the annex to Memorial Hall, beginning at 8 o'clock, which will be an experience meeting, and to which the public is cordially invited. Mr. Louis Schirmeyer, of this city, is one of the Sultana survivors and will meet with his old comrades. He will arrange transportation for all who call on him.

"The Creole" was presented at the Academy again last night with Miss Granger in her magnificent creation of Cora. The attendance was good and the audience was one of the finest that has ever been seen in a Fort Wayne theater. To-night "Camille" will be given. At the to-morrow matinee "Engaged," one of the most delicious comedy hits will be given, with Miss Olive West in her unique portrayal of Belinda Treherne. To-morrow night "Fron Fron," which delighted a large audience at the matinee yesterday, will be repeated. At the Saturday matinee Miss Granger will appear in "Camille," and Saturday night in "The Creole."

Nate Bloomhuff Dead.

Nate Bloomhuff died this morning at half-past 10 o'clock, from a lingering attack of consumption. Nate was yet a young man, and a few years ago was stout and robust, the last man one would suspect of a pulmonary complaint. He was the son of Sidney Bloomhuff, whose homestead still stands on West Wayne street. Mr. Bloomhuff lived on Miner street, and from that place his funeral will be announced later.

Wabash Conductor Suicides.

Lewis B. McCord, formerly a Wabash brakeman, committed suicide at St. Louis by cutting his throat from ear to ear during the absence of his family. Mr. McCord was in good circumstances, well known and highly esteemed several years ago. Latterly he has been unfortunate, apparently through no fault of his own; but the labor question has resulted seriously to him, he being frequently out of employment. His last situation was that of a conductor on the Wabash road, but he had lost it some months ago. He was without means even for the necessaries of life at his home, 1441 St. Louis avenue, and had a wife and child dependent upon him. He was a Mason.

THE THIRTIETH.

The Gallant Veterans Have a Pleasant Reunion at Patriotic Warsaw.

"Warsaw is a patriotic town," remarked Cy Fike, last evening, and it is. In that pleasant village of the lakes the survivors of the Thirtieth Indiana and their friends held a most enjoyable reunion yesterday. The heroes were royally entertained and feasted by the people of Warsaw, and in the opera house the soldiers renewed acquaintances and retold the stories of the war.

At the afternoon session Col. Joe W. Whitacre, of New Haven, was chosen president; John S. Provines, of Spencerville, vice-president; Jasper Ohlwine, of Cromwell, Ind., secretary; Captain M. A. Kirt, of Sturgis, Mich., treasurer. W. D. Maier, of this city, was added to the executive committee.

Capt. J. B. White, Col. C. A. Munson, Capt. A. H. Dougall, Col. I. B. McDonald, Col. George Humphrey and Capt. C. L. Lewis addressed the great assembly last evening and Capt. Jack Kensill recited an original poem and responded to an encore in his usual happy way and carried the audience by storm.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the Thirtieth regiment at New Haven, this country, April 7, 1887.

Among those present from Fort Wayne were the following: Col. C. A. Zollinger, William Adair, Thomas Toomey, Morris Zollinger, Col. O. D. Hurd, Capt. J. B. White, W. D. Maier, Charles W. Thurman, James Harper, P. H. Johnson, Cyrus Fike, John Kensill, John Seaton, Charles Centlivre, Col. Charles A. Munson, Joseph Lumbard, Col. Geo. Humphrey, Jefferson Scott, J. G. Graham, Tom Sullivan, Capt. Scott Swan, W. J. Kerr, Col. I. B. McDonald, Capt. A. H. Dougal, Christ Boseker, H. O. Crosby, Col. J. W. Younge, Capt. C. L. Lewis, Geo. Reiter, Mike Fordney, Frank Gibson and the city editor of THE SENTINEL.

Gen. Reub Williams has these notes in the Warsaw Times:

Lieutenant-Colonel Hurd, of the Thirtieth, of Fort Wayne, is with the boys to-day, as usual.

Marx Frank, of Fort Wayne, formerly in business in this place, came out with the Fort Wayne delegation to attend the reunion. He is looking first-rate.

J. B. White, captain of Co. I, Thirtieth Indiana regiment, had charge of a special train which left Fort Wayne this morning, bringing those who are to attend the reunion here to-day.

Col. George Humphrey, Captain Scott Swan and Captain Allen Dougall, of Fort Wayne, and formerly of the 88th Indiana Infantry, joined the boys of the 30th in their reunion to-day.

Sergeant Jack Kensil, of Fort Wayne, the "sweet singer" of all soldier assemblies, reuned with the 30th to-day. Jack makes things lively wherever he may be, and especially enjoys such occasions.

The old flag which the Thirtieth Indiana carried through many of the battles of the late war will be here to-day. The staff was shattered with bullets and the flag itself was cut in many places. It will be in charge of Ex-Mayor Randall, of Fort Wayne.

Among the visitors attending the Thirtieth re-union to-day is Col. Charles A. Zollinger, of Fort Wayne. Mr. Zollinger was the first lieutenant of company D, of the thirtieth, and afterwards became the colonel of the 129th Indiana infantry, and belonged to General Hovey's division at the beginning of the Atlanta campaign. Colonel Zollinger is now pension agent for Indiana.

SCARLET AND RYAN.

The Gentlemen Were Legally Elected and Can Take Their Seats Under a Supreme Court Decision.

The election of last Monday has in store another surprise for the people of Fort Wayne, and it is nothing less than that Mr. Chester Scarlet and Daniel Ryan were legally elected justices of the peace last Monday.

In 1883 the legislature enacted a law restricting or confining the number of peace justices in cities and towns to three. Before that the number was five, and here, as elsewhere, the new statutory enactment was accepted and two squires were legislated out of office. At Indianapolis Justice Feibleman refused to relinquish his commission and appealed his case to the supreme court. The unanimous decision of that tribunal is recorded in the 98th Indiana, on page 515, and it wholly repeals and declares unconstitutional the act of 1883 in the case of Feibleman vs. The Board of Commissioners of Marion county. Under this judgment Wayne township is entitled to five justices of the peace, and Messrs. Scarlet and Ryan having the highest number of votes after France, Harding and Hays, can take oath of office and immediately qualify. The decision is in the plainest English and every lawyer consulted to-day, agreed that the law of 1883 was repealed, and the enactment of 1867 stands good.

John W. Abbott, representing Miss Mattie Vickers, is in the city arranging for the appearance of his star Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Academy. Miss Vickers stars in "Jacquine, or Paste and Diamonds," and is said to be very clever. She is pert and dances prettily.

WORKING WOMEN.

Session of the Home Missionary Association.

The annual meeting of the women's missionary societies of the Fort Wayne presbytery was opened yesterday afternoon in an address of welcome by Miss Carrie B. Sharp, of this city, and nicely responded to by Mrs. W. S. Chipman, of Warsaw. In the evening Dr. Moffat gave an interesting address on missions. After the address all present were invited up stairs to partake of a bountiful supper.

TO-DAY'S SESSIONS.

The session was opened by devotional exercises by Mrs. L. R. Hartman, of this city. Her talk was very fine and carefully followed.

The annual address by the president, Mrs. D. B. Wells, of this city, was next in order. Mrs. Wells spoke for fully twenty-five minutes, and to say that the address was interesting is putting it very mild. It was a grand production and as many delegates remarked, the finest annual address ever delivered since the organization of the association.

Following the address reports were read from different societies and all seemed to be in a flourishing condition. Mrs. M. E. Goodman's report of the history of the Presbyterian society was ordered printed. Mrs. I. B. Webber, of Warsaw, spoke very nicely about "Praise Meetings," and Mrs. C. P. Reynolds, of Decatur, talked on "Methods of Giving." Many others spoke and the morning sessions was one that will long be remembered by all present. After the session the delegates stepped to the front and reported as follows:

Mrs. S. J. Shields, Goshen; Mrs. B. A. Moore, Mrs. George Whitacre, Mrs. Matilda Blackburn, Mrs. A. D. Purviance, Mrs. James Slack, Mrs. Wm. Hessin, Mrs N. Sessions, Mrs. Lesh, Huntington; Mrs. S. T. AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was opened by devotional service, led by Mrs. H. J. Helm, of Chicago.

"Methods of Work for Young People," was then pleasantly discussed by Miss Isabelle Pope, of Elkhart.

Miss Mary Clark, of Tabiz, Persia, delivered an interesting address. She is a cultured lady, an interesting speaker and explains her work in Persia so well and easy that one never tires of her talk.

Miss Tura Campbell, of Kendallville, spoke on "Plans for Regular Meetings."

Mrs. H. T. Helen's address was very fine. She is a noble woman and talks so easily and in such an earnest and sincere manner that the entire audience was held spell-bound.

To-night's session will commence at 7:30 o'clock sharp. Mrs. H. T. Helen will talk on "Foreign Missions," and Dr. R. H. Allen, D. D., of Pittsburg, will deliver an address on "His Work Among the Free Men."
